SMOOT, CALDER TAX PLANS TO BE PASSED UPON

Utah Senator Declares He Will Offer Bill On Senate

LEVY ON HOTELS LATEST CHANGE

Provision Providing For Securities Issue Approved

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Further consideration of the House tax bill will be taken up tomorrow by the senate finance committee when an attempt will be made to reach final decisions on the Smoot tax simplification bill embodying a manufacturers' sales levy, Senator Calder's proposal to impose a tax of $6.40 a gallon on all alcholic liquors withdrawn from bond for other than manufacturing purposes also will be taken up.

Both proposals were taken up yesterday but the committee failed to reach a final decision. Senator Smoot's bill was said to have been favorably received by several senators, but the concensus of opinion seemed to be that the committee would reject it.

Reiterating that he would offer the bill in the senate, the Utah senator said:

"We will see what will happen there. The American Automobile Association announced it favored the manufacturers' tax proposal declaring it 'would give business men just what they feel is needed to set in motion the wheels of industry that will give employment to more than five million idle men.'"

Complete Revision

The Smoot and Calder proposals were taken up after the committee had completed its revision of the House bill. Last minute changes included a new provision requiring hotels to pay tax of 10 per cent on the amount in excess of $5 charged to transients for single rooms and on the amount in excess of $8 charged for double rooms.

The committee approved the house provision granting the treasury authority to issue $7,700,000,000 in short term securities instead of $7,000,000,000, but rejected the ways and means committee's plan to create a tax investigative committee to study means of taxing income from tax-exempt state and municipal securities. A new proposal adopted would require the government to pay one half of one per cent interest on taxes erroneously paid and refunded.

Aside from these changes in the 1918 revenue act, the committee agreed to half a hundred others, many of which were incorporated in the house bill.

An official statement issued at Chairman Penrose's office, showed it had been agreed to accept the house provision repealing the policy taxes on life insurance and the premium taxes of other insurance companies on next January 1, and to impose a 1½ percent tax on the investment income of life insurance from last June.

Report on Tax

In considering administrative sections of the house bill, the committee reported.

Restored the provision of the present law permitting manufacturers subject to taxes and doing both a wholesale and retail business to compute the tax on retail sales upon the basis of their wholesale selling price.

Accepted the provision authorizing the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury and the consent of the tax payer, to make final settlement of tax cases.

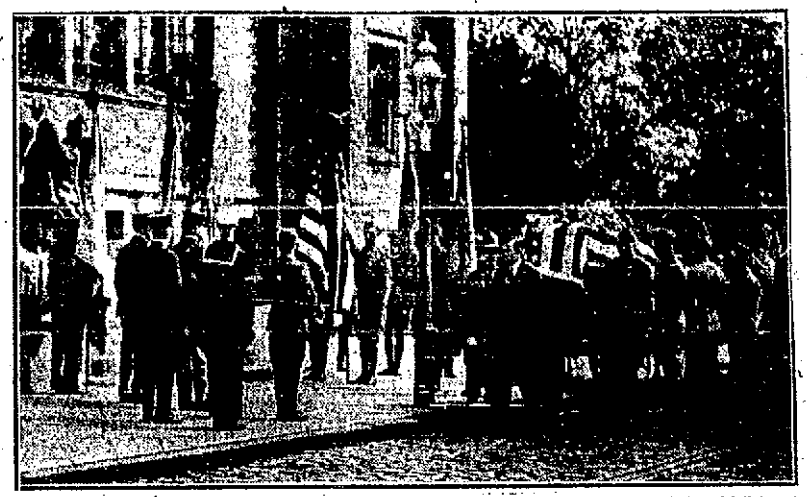

Accepted the house proposal allowing deduction in computing net income of an individual of amounts expended for meals and lodging by traveling men and other persons while away from home in pursuit of business.

Adopted the house provision permitting deduction of a net loss resulting after December 31, 1920, in any taxable year, from the net income of the tax payer for the succeeding taxable year and if the net loss is in excess of the net income for such succeeding taxable year, the amount of the excess in the next succeeding taxable year.

Accepted the house provision authorizing establishment of a tax simplification board.

Limited the deduction to individuals for gifts to charitable and educational institutions, in computing the net income, and struck out a house provision granting a similar deduction to partnership and corporations.

Philadelphia gave a great military service for Russell C. Gross, who died for his country in place of Grover Bergdoll, war slacker. Showing the scene at the church with military escort.

SHACKLETON EXPLORATION TRIP STARTS

Uncharted Sections to Be Explored by Party

200 Ton Vessel to Carry Members to Frozen Areas

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Quest, the small ship on which Sir Ernest Shackleton will explore the uncharted sections of the South Atlantic, the Pacific and the Antarctic seas, left the Thames yesterday on the start of her two-year voyage.

Large crowds gathered on the docks to wish Sir Ernest and his party a successful voyage.

The voyage of the Quest, the quaint little 200-ton ship which is carrying Sir Ernest Shackleton and his party to frozen mysteries in the South Polar seas, has for its objectives not only oceanographic research, but the exploration of a purified forest and the location of a "lost" island—Tuanaki—the adjacent waters of which have not been sailed for more than ninety years. In addition, surroundings will be taken of the ocean plateau surrounding Gough's island in an effort to determine the truth regarding a supposed underwater continental connection between Africa and America.

Nineteen persons, representing each of the British self-governing dominions are expected to be aboard when the tiny but staunch craft, "built for tight corners," leaves Capetown, South Africa, for two years of exploring its way through the Antarctic ice.

The Quest, which uses both sail and steam, and which may cover more than 30,000 miles before its return home, was constructed according to the personal ideas of Shackleton who has made several voyages to the Antarctic. He commanded the British expedition of 1907-09, which reached within 97 miles of the South Pole and also the expedition of 1914-15 to Weddell Sea. His present ship is 111 feet long, 25 foot beam and 12 feet in depth. She was built in Norway in 1917 of oak, pine and spruce and has been tested in heavy ice. Her sides are two feet thick and her bows are of solid oak sheathed with steel. Her steaming radius is 9,000 miles and, under sail, in a stiff breeze, The Quest can make eight knots. She carries wireless equipment and an airplane with a 25-foot wing spread. She has a glass-enclosed bridge and a lookout that resembles a flour barrel.

Major C. R. Carr, an English soldier of fortune, the aviator of the expedition, plans to fly above the Antarctic fogs to scout out passages between the floes through which The Quest may pass. He is also the photographer and naturalist of the expedition. The biplane, he will use is one of the only three that were ever built. The other two were flown, respectively, by Colonel Morten V. C., the pioneer flyer from England to Meispotamia and by Sir Ross Smith, the first man to fly from England to Australia.

Hold Convention at Madera Yesterday

MADERA, Sept. 18.—The quarterly convention of the San Joaquin Redmen's Association was held in Madera today, about 150 members attending. The association includes all counties between Stanislaus on the north and Kern on the south, totaling 17 tribes. Stanislaus and Merced counties were admitted to the association today.

The newly elected officers for the year are, President, B. F. Lewis of Fresno, first vice-president, W. B. Finley of Taft; second vice-president, W. F. McFarland of La Grand; secretary and treasurer, R. E. Bozman of Madera.

The prize for the largest attendance was awarded to the Kickapoo tribe of Chowchilla while the prize for the best entertainment was split between Fresno and Selma.

The great chief, great sachem of the state; G. C. Bellio of San Diego, past great sachem, B. F. Lewis of Fresno, and state organizer, Bedford were among those present. The meeting began at 10 o'clock and continued through a banquet served at noon by the Pocohontas Council. The next convention is to be held at Chowchilla in December.

New Scale of Wages In Madera District

MADERA, Sept. 18.—The grain growers in the Madera irrigation district met yesterday afternoon and decided that because of lower grain prices, the wages of the laborers in the grain fields should be lowered.

Declare Cow Not Cause of Chicago Fire

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Mrs. O'Leary's cow, famed in legend as having started the Chicago fire of 1871 by kicking over a lamp, actually had nothing to do with the conflagration, according to a committee which has conducted an investigation.

The committee's report, made public today, declares that the evidence tends to show both Mrs. O'Leary and her noted cow retired early on the night in question and that the fire was started by some means not discovered.

HEROES OF WAR LAID AT REST

Hanford Honors Men Who Died Overseas

HANFORD, Sept. 18.—Five of Hanford's sons, who made the supreme sacrifice in the world war, were laid to rest side by side this afternoon in the Hanford cemetery, after impressive ceremonies conducted by the American Legion.

The five were Private Manuel P. Lapea, Private Ralph Long, Corporal Walter E. Ihde, Private George Kennell and Private Joseph Lanes. Three of these, Lapea, Ihde and Long, were members of Company A, 15th Infantry, and were killed on the same day, October 17, 1918, near Metz.

G. A. R. veterans, men who saw service in the Spanish American war, and members of old Company M of this city, joined with the citizens in paying honor to the memory of the men. An arch had been erected over the G. A. R. monument and over the plot in which the remains were laid at rest.

John R. Quinn of Delano, state commander of the American Legion, and Rev. David Todd Gilmor, chaplain of the Hanford post, conducted the services at the graves.

During the morning at St. Bridget's church requiem high mass was recited over the body of Lapea by Father John Nealon of the Redemptionist Fathers of Fresno, and services for Long were held at the Methodist church, Rev. W. L. Dexter conducting the rites, while Dr. Frank Stuart Ford of the Christian church, officiated at services held for Ihde.

ASK PURCHASE OF DIRIGIBLES

To Buy From Germany If Possible

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Procurement of a dirigible of the Zeppelin type—from Germany if possible—to replace the lost ZR-2 and continuation of construction of the ZR-1, now building Lakehurst, N. J., was recommended today to President Harding and Secretaries Denby and Weeks by the official National Advisory committee for aeronautics.

The committee declared the present program of the United States in regard to rigid airships can be regarded only as extremely conservative." Referring to the loss of the ZR-2, the committee asserts that "the conclusion is certain that whatever was the primary cause of the accident, use of hydrogen was a contributing cause."

The committee pointed out that "America possesses the only large store of helium known to exist, by the use of which airships can be more successfully developed by America than by any other country for commercial as well as military purposes."

It would be contrary to the true American spirit," the committee added, "to abandon a conservative program because of one serious accident when it is possible by studying the cause of the accident to profit by mistakes."

SHINGLE MILLS CLOSED

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 17.—Eighty-five per cent of the shingle mills in British Columbia were closed today when the 2,000 workers struck in protest against a reduction in wages. One-half of the strikers are said to be Chinese.

ONE KILLED; ONE INJURED IN COLLISION

Car Demolishes Power Pole on Bakersfield Street

George Prior, Prominent Kern County Man, Victim

Special to The Republican

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 18.—George Prior, 35, member of a well known Kern county family, was killed and J. M. Cavnor of Taft was severely injured when an automobile in which they were riding with James Maguire of Taft, crashed into an electric pole on the southeast corner of Grove and Kern streets. Cavnor will recover, physicians at the San Joaquin hospital, where he is confined, announced today.

The car was being driven at a high rate of speed, it is asserted. The pole was clipped off near the ground but did not injure anyone as it fell. Live wires were strewn about the street and sidewalk.

Prompt action by employes of the San Joaquin Light and Power corporation eliminated the possibilities of any injury from this source to the large crowd of spectators.

Maguire sustained a few cuts and bruises.

OLD BRIDGE IS WRECKED

Workmen Near Exeter Thrown in River

VISALIA, Sept. 18.—While three workmen were engaged in making minor repairs on the 100 foot wooden bridge over the Kaweah river on the Exeter-Woodlake road it collapsed late today, precipitating the workmen into the river, from which they were rescued. The bridge was badly wrecked and it will be necessary to close the road for several days. The structure, which had been in use for nearly a score of years was soon to be replaced with a modern bridge.

Reductions Made In Cattle Shipments

A twenty percent reduction in shipping charges on certain California stock being shipped from points in Arizona and California cities becomes effective September 20, expiring December 31, according to a telegram H. H. Ish, Southern Pacific district freight and passenger agent has received from G. W. Luce, general manager.

The reduction affects cattle, sheep, calves and hogs. Shipping rates for horses, mules and goats have not been reduced.

The new minimums are: 36 foot car, cattle $118; sheep and hogs, double decks, $160.

Similar reductions on the Goophs tariff also become effective September 20, according to the telegram.

Receive Palm Date Shoots From Africa

INDIO, Cal., Sept. 18.—Fourteen hundred palm date shoots from the north of Africa have been received by growers of the Coachella Valley and attempts will be made to introduce their culture here.

The shipment contained the following varieties: Deglect Noor, which is well known in this country; the Theary, a dry variety and said to be very rare; the Halloues Loullech, a recent discovery, and the Deglect Belda reported to be of superior quality and never before imported to this country.

The Halloues Loullech date, it was said, was secured by dispatching an Arab with camels a distance of forty miles to the interior of the Sahara desert.

OIL OPERATORS SEE LAWLESS CONDITION IN VALLEY

Charge Workers With Outlawry in Strike

DECLARE LAW BEING IGNORED

Say Strikers Have Been Badly Led in Movement

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—The California Oil Producing companies which accepted the wartime agreement to have their wage differences adjusted by the department of labor, "have felt that it was a mistake," and that it was a "move on the part of labor leaders to nationalize the industry," the oil producers association said in a statement on the Kern county situation which was made public here tonight.

"The Oil Producers believe, that the slogan 'more business in government and less government in business,' is proper and meets with the approval of the present administration," the statement said.

The statement is as follows:

"The Oil Producer's Association of California represents between 80 and 90 percent of the industry affected by the strike. It expects the constituted officers of the counties concerned and of the state of California to see promptly that rights of persons and property in the oil districts are maintained. The causes of the oil strike and the present situation have been grossly misrepresented by the strike leaders in their statements to the public and to the officers of the government. These facts are as follows:

Past Held Mistake

"During the year period certain of the California oil companies accepted a suggestion that a federal conciliators representing the department of labor be used as mediators in connection with relations between such companies and their employes. The plan was accepted only by a part of the companies in this state. It was presented through the same channel, Mr. Walter Z. Reed of Colorado, to the industry every where, but rejected. The companies which did not accept it have been at peace with their employes, establishing and maintaining agreeable relations direct. Those that did accept it have felt that it was a mistake, that it tended, under the constant agitation carried on by labor leaders, to break the bonds of mutual trust and understanding that should exist between them and their employes.

"The avowed purpose of many of these leaders is to force the government to take on the obligation of determining wages and working conditions in the oil fields, some of them having the idea that this will lead to nationalization of the industry. They actually assume that it is a violation of patriotism not to have the government interfere and determine these questions. There is no law requiring such mediation and all proceedings have been entirely informal.

"The oil producers believe that the slogan 'more business in government and less government in business,' is proper and meets with the approval of the present administration. They have no desires to place upon agents of the department of labor, acting informally and without legal sanction, any obligation to give the final vote deciding momentous questions those agents being without responsibility for the results to the industry, whether employees are at fault. At all times the producers are willing to meet with their own employes or representatives from among their number elected by such employes. There is no dispute as to wages or working conditions. None has been brought to the producers by the employes. As a matter of fact the newly established wages, there being no change in working conditions, are the same for the companies where there is a strike as were established with the Shell Company, which yielded to the demand for government mediation, and where there is no strike. The statement that men have been discharged for belonging to unions is false. Mediation program expired on August 31st; the last work required being for the mediators to pass upon certain earnings of employes during the last year contingent upon continuous service, about which there has been no dispute. (It has been proposed to replace the former mediation commission with the federal oil board).

Says Purpose Clear.

"The purpose of the men heading this strike is plain, and that is by force to bring pressure on the government to interfere and assume obligations of mediation and arbitration which they intend shall develop into control of the industry.

"At this time a lawless condition exists in the oil fields of the San Joaquin Valley. The highways into those fields are guarded by strikers, vehicles using them are stopped and passengers permitted to use them only by permission of the strikers. The constables in these oil districts have deputized several hundred strikers, thus enabling them to carry weapons openly. At night barricades have been erected across the highways. Men who attempted to work at night, except with a few field transporation pumping stations have been obliged to quit. Guards sent in to protect the properties against depredations, have been turned back.

"A special trainload of such guards, sent in not to operate the properties, but merely to protect them, was derailed on the Sunset Western railway, taken possession of by strikers and force dispatched to Bakersfield. Officers of the company have been shot at. Stating it baldly, the properties of the company have been taken possession of by the strikers. In some of the towns in that section no merchandise, not even drugs, can be bought except under permit from these strikers, and in some instances union employes are no allowed to leave town except with their permisson.

JAPAN IS LACKING IN RESOURCES NEEDED TO BUILD INDUSTRY

Militarists Who Control Nation Eager For Conquest

By CHASE S. OSBORN, JR.

There can be no legitimate opposition to Japan's desire to consolidate her economic position in the East as long as that desire is kept within the limits of such a commercial expansion as will recognize the rights of other nations to compete on an equal basis.

While Japan has made such tremendous strides in industry that her progress is today the wonder of the modern world, she is still an industrially backward nation as compared with her contemporaries. And because she is far behind the position Western nations have won for themselves industrial expansion is a life and death matter with the Nipponese.

As a nation which has developed from tribal relationships to a position as one of the great powers within a period of 70 years, Japan offers a remarkable and eloquent example of the constructive power of human energy as applied intelligently. This evolution of Japan is one of the great romances of empire building that takes its place in history along with the greatest governments of the world.

In this respect the land of the Mikado is the wonder nation of the world.

Japan Over-rated

But an investigation of conditions in Japan will soon lead one to the conclusion that as a truly great nation, a nation containing the necessary elements of greatness, Japan is over-rated. Her industrial activity is limited to a small section of the country and a comparatively small number of people likewise is it confined as to articles produced. While the home industries have been developed to a degree unknown in the great commercial nations of the world, Japan is still far short of its requirements.

A government diagram graphically depicts this Japanese shortcoming. It shows that practically one-half of the total imports consist of raw materials; and three-quarters of the total imports are raw materials and manufactures for further use in manufacturing.

There is further significance, too, in the official export chart. This shows that the imported raw materials go to make up practically seven-eighths of all of Japan's exports, consisting of articles wholly manufactured or manufactures for further use in manufacture.

Thus it is that Japanese leaders admit that the immediate question of life and death importance to their country is to increase its industrial production and to find new markets.

Right here comes the question of raw resources, so important to the Far Eastern situation.

Lacks Elements

The Japanese empire does not possess the necessary fundamental elements that go to make up industry sufficient in its greatness, to compete with the rest of the world. With the leadership that steel has taken Japan feels perhaps her greatest sources of weakness in that direction. Of iron she has so little and of such poor quality that whatever Japan possesses counts for practically naught. Of coal the same may be said. Japanese coal is of such low grade that it is none too good for even steaming purposes, it falls far short of smelting requirements. Likewise, is Japan poverty stricken as regards sufficient supplies of the right kind of timber and the various metals used in modern industry.

As the world counts great nations today Japan is over-rated. She has sprung into a position that she is not entitled to when comparison is made with her rivals. A strong army and a powerful army, in addition to a tremendous man-power, are not sufficient of themselves to make for a well-rounded country.

It is in recognition of this very fact that leads such statesmen as Vice Minister Hanihara to declare that "Japan can not exist as a great nation unless permitted to enter the markets of the world to obtain adequate supplies of raw materials."

Mr. Hanihara's admission to me continues: "My country has not one fundamental element required for industrialization in sufficient quantities. Therefore, we must obtain practically everything abroad. To this end we favor economic freedom and free trade over the entire world.

"In the first place, my country must trade on an equal basis with all others; and, secondly, she desires free trade."

Is Open Confession

This is not only an open confession of the inherent Japanese weakness, but it is also a statement of policy that the rest of the world would desire to come in irrevocable form from the leaders of the military.

For how reassuring it would be to know once and for all that Japan is willing to remain economically dependent, as all other nations are, and that she is not intent upon a policy of territorial aggression!

Indeed, it is comforting to hear Mr. Hanihara say that "if Japan can trade without discrimination she will be satisfied to go into the world markets in open and fair competition with her commercial rivals." But such statements are not convincing when the Japanese methods of economical domination flash into one's mind. For constantly Mommataro's policy of "go and conquer another country" occupies its place of prominence in any analysis of policy and method the students of Japan attempts.

Thus, is shown the desperate necessity the government at Tokyo faces. Of equal interest and importance for an understanding of the situation that has developed in the Orient is the source of the Japanese policy.

Japan, of course, is well known as the last of the great world autocracies. The significant feature of autocratic Japan is the fact that there is such a slight chance of reforming the government along liberal lines that it is almost hopeless. Civil warfare alone could bring about a change.

This is a matter of transcending importance in view of what is going on in the East, and, therefore, I justify a repetition of what is already a well-known fact.

Ruled by Military

The government of Japan is constitutionally a military government. It can not be anything except what the military officials dictate. The power of the general staff is complete.

In the organization of a cabinet the ministers of War and of the Navy must come from those respective branches of the military service, so that in case of any serious differences in policy the Military Party has the power to upset any cabinet merely by an act of resignation on the part of these ministers. The importance of any such resignations is clearly seen when we recall that beyond the Mikado himself stand the Elder Statesmen, at the head of whom is "the venerable statesman and Genro, Yamagata, who in turn is the head of the Military Party. Here, then, is the power, answerable to no authority, that decides Japanese policy.

And this force is active. As an incident witness the recent statement from Tokyo that the Siberian expedition would be immediately withdrawn, a statement emanating from the Foreign Office. Within the time of a few hours the statement was contradicted and the General Staff made it known that Japan's military forces in Siberia would be maintained until "peaceful and settled conditions were established there."

The particular danger that comes from a national program given birth in military hearts is clearly indicated in the point of view military officials hold, as well as by the great care taken by the military to maintain its power.

Cites Expansion

Military Japan tells Civil Japan that it has always been successful in its national policies. It cites the expansion due to the war with China in 1894-5 and Russia in 1904-5, when Formosa, Korea, the Southern half of Saghalien, and a practical mastery of Southern Manchuria were obtained. It refers to the Great War and the winning of Shantung, and ascribes to military strength the renewal of the Liaotung lease, since the demand for renewal was successfully pressed upon China because it was backed by sufficient power.

It is natural, therefore, that Military Japan continue its story of conquest to Civil Japan. A strong one developed army and navy have created the empire and will do so in the future, and as long as the empire grows the power of the military as a governing body is secure at home.

Siberia today is the goal of Military Japan. It is the next natural step in an aggressive program for extension of the nation and the maintenance of authority in Tokyo. "We will bag the Maritime Province for you," the soldiery of the Mikado proclaims, "and thus will Japan march on its ambition of greatness."

A less vigorous view of the Japanese military desires presents a policy of powerful offense as the best defense, and as the most effective protection to Japan's interests at home, in Asia, and abroad. This would hold true, it is to be admitted, were it not for methods that the authorities use which offer many incidents in contradiction that such is the real purpose of certain policies.

Policies Opposed

There are in Japan today many factions that oppose such policies as the militarists have fixed upon the government. This is eminently to the credit of the civilian population. But these factions represent a minority powerless to such an extent that it is utterly hopeless to expect any ascension of liberalism to the point of authority. The constitution of the land is not to be changed.

There is, however, the chance that these factions can impress their ideas upon those in power to such an extent that the militarists can be shown the folly of their ways. Such a chance is remote, and is unequal to that which is possible in the minorities of Democracies because the Military Party not alone dictates policy, but it also dominates public opinion through publicity made to its order.

The hope of Japan lies in the intelligence of its militarists!

As we look at the necessity of Japan's industrial policy, as well as the source from which that policy springs, the picture that is drawn from the activities of the island empire is not one that produces any great degree of assurance.

Military Not Unchecked.

We should know, in this connection, that the Japanese military does not go unchecked these days as it did during the Great War. The greatest drawback to plans for the extension of the empire emanates from the powers of the world. This may be unfortunate for Japan, and it may not conform to the standards of international conference we would like to see, nevertheless it is assuring.

Vigorous presentation of claims on the part of other nations proves of real concern to Tokyo today. It is becoming increasingly evident in official Japanese circles that the power to do has a direct connection with the right to do, and that other governments are now in a position to insist upon the right and to resist might as it alone determines international programs.

Thus, if the militarists of Japan are possessed of real intelligence, and this is readily accredited to them, they will receive American advice freely and act upon it favorably. As our suggestions of 70 years ago proved the making of the nation, so today our advice will make secure its position among the nations of the world. As a vigorous insistence upon our policy of the "open door" then overcame certain anti-foreign influences for the notable improvement of the country, so today a vigorous insistence on our part for a continuance of the "open door" and a free competition as between nations to the end that commerce and industry shall be unrestrained by unfair discrimination, will prove a policy of righteousness

SHOPMEN VOTE TO WALK OUT; POSTPONE ACTION

To Await Promulgation Of Working Rules By Board

SAY ACTION WILL AID IN STRUGGLE

Union Head Says Men Must Wait Until Opportune Time

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Railroad shopmen belonging to the six federated shopcrafts unions have voted to strike against the railroad reduction of July 1, but will defer action until promulgation of working rules pending before the railroad labor board, when another vote will be taken on acceptance or rejection of the rules. This announcement was officially made by H. J. Jewell, head of the shop crafts organization, after a mass meeting of Chicago shop workers today.

Belief that a stronger fight could be made, if a strike is called, with preservation of the shopmen's working rules as a goal led to the decision to withhold a strike call, Mr. Jewell said. He and other union speakers counseled the men to wait until the entire wage and rules situation was before them, rather than rush into a strike which, Mr. Jewell declared, the railroads desired.

"We can make a real fight on the rules provision when we might not have the full support of other branches of railway employes on a wage tilt alone," he said. "We must wait until the time is opportune. You men who have been on strike before don't want to rush blindly into this thing. But if the labor board releases all remaining rules to be acted on at one time, then we will have the whole matter before us. We will need only one vote to determine what will be done."

This announcement was greeted with applause. Mr. Jewell asserted shop crafts would have the co-operation of other organizations, including the Big Four brotherhoods, if a strike were called, and urged his audience to preserve order.

The strike vote completed August 1 was announced as showing a constitutional majority against the wage reduction which went in effect July 1. This was the first official confirmation.

Condemnation of the operations of the labor board and of its decisions was voiced by all speakers. Mr. Jewell charged that the railroads were attempting to use the board to gage unfair advantage of the industrial situation. He said he would demand of the board that "for once, it meet the situation in a practical way," and announce the remaining rules simultaneously.

MADERA LEASE CASE DECIDED

Ford Given Decision by Judge Murray

MADERA, Sept. 18.—Judgment in favor of the defendant was rendered here yesterday by Judge Stanley Murray in the case of A. J. Mammasse and L. M. Mendelsohn against F. F. Ford of Ford's Federated Factors.

The routines of the case are: J. L. Price owned a lot at the northwest corner of D and Sixth streets in Madera. F. F. Ford of San Francisco leased the lot of Price and in turn assigned the lease to Ford's Federated Factors.

One clause in the lease gave the lessee an option to purchase the lot for $9,500, the option expiring on the 5th of May, 1922.

Another clause in the lease gave Price the privilege of selling the property subject tho the lease and its covenants upon first giving the lessee the right to purchase the property on the terms offered by the other purchaser.

The question at issue was whether the sale of the property to a purchaser other than the lessee nullified the clause in the lease which gave the lessee an option to purchase at any time before May 5, 1922. Mammasse and Mendelsohn as plaintiffs maintained that their purchase of the property from Price gave them unconditional possession. Ford maintained as defendant that his option to purchase the property from the new owners at the price stated was still in effect. The property is said to be worth approximately $15,000.

Fee and Ring represented the plaintiffs and John W. Maloy the defendant.

LINDSAY'S WAR HEROES BURIED

Enormous Crowd Honor Memory of Men

LINDSAY, Sept. 18.—Honor was paid to the memory of two of Lindsay's war heroes, Julius C. Keeley and Arthur H. Sherman, today by what was said to have been the largest crowd ever gathered in this city.

The services, which were held at the Washington school grounds, were conducted by the American Legion, assisted by Rev. C. L. Kennedy, Rev. Thomas L. Burden and the Visalia lodge of Elks. Flags throughout the city were at half-mast and citizens joined with the comrades of the dead men in doing honor to them.

The order of services was: Invocation, Rev. Charles L. Kennedy; presentation of memorials from Lindsay post and the California State Department of the American Legion by John R. Quinn, state commander; Elks ceremonial, Visalia lodge, B. P. O. E.; address, Hon. James M. Burke of Visalia.

In the line of march to the cemetery were the Modern Woodmen of America, the Visalia lodge B. P. O. E.; the colors; American Legion; the caskets carried on an army truck and accompanied by the pall-bearers, members of the families of the two men; and G. A. R. veterans.

At the Olive cemetery the American Legion ritual with the firing of the salute and the sounding of taps took place. Interment of the bodies was private, Rev. Burdan officiating at the grave of Arthur Sherman and Rev. C. L. Kennedy at the grave of Julius Keeley.

SERMONS AND CHURCH EVENTS

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE IS SERMON TOPIC

Rev. Thomas T. Giffen Delivers Sermon at First Christian

Participation in League Of Nations Favored By Speaker

Last evening at the First Christian union meeting, Rev. Thomas T. Giffen spoke on "The Disarmament Conference". He said in part:

"From the recent great war humanity ought to have learned a number of important lessons. The first of these is that from an economic point of view war doesn't pay. Norman Angell and others proved this some years before the war began. But it was too late. The stage was set and the war had to go on. However the outcome was a full demonstration of Angell's main thesis that war costs more than its rewards are worth.

"A second truth that the war set before us is that nations do not always fight for material advantage. They fight for a place in the sun, for recognition, in order to ward off possible political revolution, to defend justice and liberty for themselves, and sometimes they fight with genuine altruistic purpose in defense of justice for other peoples.

"A third thing that is evident, when we consider the nations which were either first or last engaged in the war, is that neither the possession of nor the lack of adequate military defences is a guarantee against a nations going to war.

Strength of Nations

"Another lesson that our American experience brings home to us is that the strength of a nation for war is not mainly in moral resources that lie ready to be developed into a fighting machine when necessity shall demand. So that if we fear the possibility of another war it may be that the best preparation we can make for it is to build roads and develop our natural resources and educate our children rather than to improverish ourselves by building a great army and navy.

"But perhaps the greatest thing that came out of the war was the vision that came to number of men of whom Woodrow Wilson was chief —the vision of a league of free nations. The plan of the league may belong to others, but the idealism that inspired it was Wilson's. The fact that the President was unable to persuade the American people to follow him does not prove the folly of his dream. History may yet testify that in everything except matters of practical political judgement he was right.

"The idea of a league of nations at first appealed to a people whose soul was lit with a high moral purpose. Then came the end of the war and with it the consciousness that we were materially rich and the desire to get quickly back to our old jobs. Then with horror we learned that the nations we had been allied with were not the perfectly redeemed peoples we had thought them to be, and we forthwith desired to resume our former isolation. Then came a political campaign with the necessity of defeating on some ground or other the party that had been for eight years in power. And so the League of Nations, and with it the peace of the world, waits upon the exegencies of American politics.

"The election is over. Another party is in power. Industrial depression sets in. Millions are out of work. Wages are going down. We are not as rich as we thought we were. We begin to be alarmed by the size of our tax bills, occasioned in part by the enormous expenditures we are making for war purposes. Then comes a demand from the people of the country in response to which the President calls a conference of the five leading nations to see what can be done to stop this needless expenditure and to settle some of the vexed questions that might otherwise have to be subjected to the arbitrament of war. The only great nation that is not a member of the league is inviting the principal members of the league to discuss with her precisely those questions with which the league is, through various commissions, dealing.

"In a recent very lucid article in the World's Work French Strother illustrates the differences between the spirit and methods of the Paris and Washington conferences by a comparison of the British and American constitutions. The Paris conference wrote a constitution of the world, a machine which would operate in any and all emergencies to produce peace and settle international difficulties whatever they might be and whenever they might occur. This was the way our fathers proceeded when this nation came into being. The Washington conference will meet and attempt to devise settlements for some present issues. If these settlements disclose a successful method of negotiations this method may become a part of an unwritten international constitution and the necessary mechanical arrangements. The latter is the method of the British constitution which is simply "the sum total of the British ideal of government as that ideal has come to be expressed in institutions which originally were improvised to meet political emergencies as they arose and were retained afterward because they worked."

The author above quoted expresses a preference for the method of the Washington conference rather than for that of the Paris conference. I am inclined to think that it does not make an infinite difference which method we take. Under the British constitution the people of Great Britain get just about that degree of liberty and governmental efficiency for which they are fit and which they deserve. So do we under our American constitution. If they could change constitutions each nation would make about the same success or failure of government that it is making now. In other words success depends not so much upon the machine as upon the moral character of the people who operate it. So in international affairs our success will be determined by the fairness and idealistic purpose of the nations with whom we deal rather than by the particular method of procedure.

Lasting Good May Come

"However we may well hope that much of lasting good will come out of the Washington conference. Perhaps we dare hope that there may come an actual agreement among the chief nations to cease for a term of years the further building of navies. Thus there would be saved to the people of England, Japan and the United States the few billions of dollars that we are preparing to spend on ships of war. The present strength of our navy is about two-thirds that of Great Britain and about twice that of Japan. The projected ships would make our strength nearly equal to Great Britain's and about fifty per cent greater than that of Japan's. It is clearly to the advantage of both the other countries that the programs be halted. Let us hope that it will be done.

"A second result of the Washington conference is that we shall be stimulated to do some harder thinking about our Oriental relations than we have yet done. Hitherto we have not understood nor tried to understand Japan. Perhaps this conference will make her purposes evident and we shall know whether she is genuinely benevolent or thoroughly Prussian. It may leo that through the conference Japan will come to a more systematic understanding of our California Japanese problem. And possibly we Californians will learn some of the larger implications of our own local intercat.

League of Nations

"Another thing that we may hope will come out of the conference is a conviction of the necessity of American participation in the League of Nations. We cannot remain isolated from the rest of the world. We cannot leave Russia alone because we have a heart that sympathizes with starving humanity. We cannot stay out of Europe because justice and democracy here depend upon justice and democracy abroad. We have found it necessary to call the chief nations of Europe to help us scettle matters of concern between us and China and Japan. It may be that when the conference assembles we shall discover that we are dealing with the same people with whom we would be dealing if we were in the League; that they are just as honest or dishonest when they meet in Washington as when they meet in Geneva; that they mean the same thing whether their reresentatives meet us on this side of the ocean or the other.

"The great duty of the people of America today whatever may be our opinion about the League of Nations, is to give unstintingly our support to the Washington conference. It is our business to raise this whole discussion of our international relations above the murk of selfish politics, to rescue it from the grasp of the yellow press, to get it out of the realm of material advantage, to place it on the high level of Christian justice, universal brotherhood and the international Golden Rule."

News Brevities of Seriwces Held In Churches Yesterday

First Baptist Church

Yesterday was rally day in the First Baptist church Sunday school. There were 36 present.

Next Sunday is promotion day when pupils will receive their diplomas.

The Intermediate B. Y. P. B. C. E. have elected officers for the ensuing term as follows: President, Emmett Leger; vice president, Glenn Goodwill; recording secretary, Lena Zug; corresponding secretary, Eva Wakefield; treasurer, Lowell McLean; social committee, Eula Fletcher; missionary, Malvina Williams; lookout, Glenn Goodwill; prayer meeting, Margaret Hines; efficiency, Herbert Wilkinson; Sunday school, Alton Williams; music, Eleanor Frost; flower and quiet hour, Betty Mills.

There was baptism at the evening service. There is a special interest among young men.

The fall campaign is beginning with a good interest in all departments.

The Senior Young People's Society were entertained by a lawn party last Friday evening at the home of Miss Emma Avery, 625 Palm Avenue. About thirty-five young people were present to participate in the festivities. The social evening began inside, but soon games had set everyone playing on the spacious lawn.

Refreshments were rather unique. Everyone seated himself at the table and was served with waffles. Songs and yells added much merriment to the evening. At the close Mr. R. C. Avery announced his engagement with the local Y. M. C. A. as Fellowship Secretary and heartily invited all the young men to drop in.

Grace Methodist

Rev. C. E. Bower preached at both services in the absence of Rev. E. E. Marshall, who was confined to his home by illness.

The work of renovating and decorating the interior of the church will be accomplished this week.

First Presbyterian

Dr. H. H. Bell preached in the morning on "The New Creation" and in the evening on "The Joy of Conviction."

At the morning service Mrs. F. H. Connelly sang "The Prayer Powerful," by Stenson; Miss Ethel Amerine sustained the solo portion of the anthem by the choir, "I Will Sing of Thy Power," by Sullivan.

At the evening service the choir rendered an anthem, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," by Whitney.

The public was invited to inspect the new building in the afternoon.

On next Sunday a rally day will be held by the Sunday school from 10 to 12. At 3 there will be a fraternal service when other pastors will speak. In the evening a dedication service will be held for the organ.

RELATION OF THE STRONG TO THOSE WEAKER

Dr. John Freeman Mills Discusses Question Our Obligation

Strength Controlled Is Implement for Great Good to Many

"The Giant and the Midget, or the Obligation of Strength to Weakness" was the subject of a sermon delivered at the First Baptist church Sunday morning by Dr. John Freeman Wells. Text Rom. 15:1. "We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves." He said in part:

"Notwithstanding a popular interpretation of our 'Declaration of Independence,' men are not born equal. Birth should give all men a chance of becoming what they are capable of being, but millions in all continents are still deprived of this chance.

"Men are not equal in practical ability, spiritual mental capacity. We see this constantly illustrated in everyday life. Races are not equal. Anglo Saxon peoples have shown a peculiar capacity for self government while the Latin races of South America have made but little real progress in this line. The strong and weak as individuals and races must live together. The exploitation of the weak by the strong is the source of the most cruel tragedies in the relationships of individuals, nations and races. Where shall we find a key to the solution of this relationship between the strong and the weak?

Answer of Christianity

"'Ye that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak.' This came to the world as a revolutionary principle. Science speaks of the struggle for existence and the survival of the fittest. But science also speaks in another voice of co-operation and altruism in nature. These qualities become more prominent as the scale of existence rises. Our text is the central pillar of the Gospel. It is embodied in the mission of Jesus. He who was rich for our sakes become poor that we through His poverty might be made rich.

"Its embodiment in our lives makes of little importance dogmas and institutions and rituals.

"Must we not strive to prevent weakness as well as to bear its burdens? Most assuredly, this is all important, and rightly are we quickening our pace in the attainment of so many needed laws for the amelioration of the conditions surrounding weak, subnormal and illiterate. But this does not excuse us from our individual service.

Weak Are Worth Saving

"Our Saviour had a place in His heart for all, the prodigal, harlot and publican heard Him gladly. He gave up His life for the lowest in humanity; He counted personality, however ruined, as worth the price of the crown of thorns, the spear and the cross. Jesus' confidence in the latent possibilities and worth of all mankind is justified. In the spread of civilization, Greek culture taking hold of a Barbarian people caused the center of the Greek influence to be transferred from Athens to Alexandria.

"Human worth is exemplified in the spread of democracy, not only as a political co-partnership, but giving popular access to education, leisure and economic self control, leading to co-partnership in industry as well as government.

"The missionary conquests of the Christian church have justified Christ's faith in man. Charles Darwin in sending his subscription wrote "The sucess of the Tierra del Fuego Mission is most wonderful and shames me as I always prophesied utter failure.' The story of missions is most fascinating, as it portrays the transformation and uplifting of individuals and peoples. Behold a student with cheeks scarred from heathen customs, desiring advanced courses in semetics to enable him to translate the Old Testament for his people. Our text presents the strongest kind of argument for putting our foot on the accelerator in all our missionary enterprises. Let us not despise the weakness and degredation of heathen peoples. Let us remember the pit from which we have been dug. Not so many centuries ago, our heathen ancestors in Great Britain were cannibals and offered up their children as sacrifices. That would be our condition still, if the gospel had not come from our forefathers to us.

Obligation of Strength

"Perhaps in modern parlance, Paul might have said 'Have a heart!' Experts are employed in business to discover byproducts and undeveloped resources. We should not fail to discover our strength, resources and possibilities for service. These have not been given us for our own enjoyment or self admiration but for use.

CHURCH HOLDS BABY SERVICE

St. Paul's Pastor Flays Act of Arbuckle

At St. Paul's M. E. Church yesterday a service was held for the babies. Several were given the ordinance of baptism. During the course of his address the pastor, Rev. C. A. German, took occasion to refer scathingly to the recent act of Arbuckle. He said in part:

"And He took them up in his arms put his hands upon them, and blessed them."—Mark 10:16.

"Christ exalted the baby in the midst. The Abrahamic Covenant was to 'you and your seed, forever.' Peter realized this and exclaimed, 'unto you and your children.' And so, little baby, we look upon you this morning as the semblance of heaven, showing us the beauty of perfection. Indeed, destiny depends upon you. Yes, you are the rosebud that blossoms into chaos or cosmos. You are youth, and possess potentialities with which you may transform empires. Yes, you are more, you are the tie that binds home together, creating empires. You are innocency; you are purity. And yet you are a target for sin. Though may it be our consolation,—had Israel been satisfied with her fleshpots in Egypt she could have produced no prophets. 'Then welcome each rebuff. Learn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the three!' Little baby, God has brought you to mama and papa and you remain so willingly in their care, you trust so implicitly in their love, you so hopefully look to their leadership, we know you ask! In my life's barge will Jesus be sealed as pilot, or, the devil be given as guide.' You ask still more.—'Will I shine as Moses or Paul, as Chrysostum or a Luther, Wesley or Moody?' 'Or,' you say, 'Will I go down like the Belshazzars, the Napoleons, or the Kaisers on the throne?' Opportunity for the child's lifetime, must be grasped during the lifetime of the opportunity. Are we planning? Is innocency at seven to glow with majestic sweetness, and in later years turn criminal.

"Yesterday, so to speak, Roscoe 'Fatty' Arbuckle represented prattling innocency; today he stands charged as a flagrant defier of law and order. Evidence through recent press dispatches informs us of this man's dastardly, beastly attack on society. Tells us even how innocent flesh, some mother's tender baby girl, grown up, was made the object of his vicious, low, animal-like outburst. There in that hotel the spirit of Belshazzar's feast ran riot, they drank, and they feasted, until California was outraged and the poor, poor girl met her fate, her death. Now, let us inquire.— What 'Fatty' Arbuckle the product of? I deny that he was the product of God. In this awful moment when California stands aghast, why don't some champion from the depths of rot where Arbuckle's scheme was plotted come forth, and from the house top, cry for liberty from, as they are pleased to say, the tyranny of the churches, who have simply plead for a sacred Sunday, and a clean show. The answer is easy. They are ashamed to the heart. Well they may be! Damnable businesses have persistently thrust upon the public,—scenes in murder, the highwayman, robberies, the card table in action, the all-but-nude, love scenes, that "sex stuff"—and the like until the masses are intoxicated. And the other night in San Francisco 'Fatty' Arbuckle, one of their own ilk, spilled the beans and pulled off a little (?) show like unto their own service. God save the day, and help us prepare a better way for the tread of our little babies and thoughtless, careless, unconcerned peoples of every age and color."

Such use will often necessarily cause the abridgement of our personal liberty in order that we may serve others. The great and strong are a menace to society without self control and a sense of obligation. We that are strong ought not to please ourselves. The weakling is more likely to please himself. Lower brute life is unrestrained. Human life easily becomes brutish when restraint is thrown off. What a tragedy was recently enacted in San Francisco when the brutal passion of a prominent movie actor led to the death of a young woman. Regard for others must take precedence to selfishness; self denial and self limitation count much in service to the weak. Strength controlled is no longer a menace but a ministry to humanity. Electricity in the atmosphere is useless, but controlled, it drives the wheels of industry and whispers our thoughts across the seas and continents."

DEFENDS VIEW OF RUTHERFORD

E. P. Taliaferro Claims Millions Now Living Will Never Die

During his lecture on "The Foregleams of a Better Day," E. P. Taliaferro took occasion at the Parlor Lecture Club yesterday afternoon to reply to Pastor Raber's arguments against Judge Rutherford's declaration that "Millions Now Living Will Never Die." He said in part:

"While we are always glad to listen to intelligent criticisms of our views, it is regrettable that in attempting to reply to Judge Rutherford's lecture, Pastor Raber, as reported in last Monday's Republican, saw fit to misrepresent our beliefs in several important respects.

"What Pastor Russell taught, what Judge Rutherford teaches, is what the bible proclaims, that the earth abideth forever; (Eccl. 1:14), that the word world is used in the bible to signify what it so often means in present day usage; A social and political order enduring for a certain time. As proof, note that the flood is said to have destroyed the world that was—manifestly not the planet earth, but the world of mankind and their arrangements, (II Peter 3:6). The same apostle goes on to explain that the present evil world should end in a great fire—which we hold to be the symbolic fire of world-wide trouble which began in 1914.

"Rev. Raber says: 'The world did not end in 1914, as the past seven years of history since that date proves to any mind not totally lost to common sense.' It appears, therefore, that among the minds totally lost to common sense are the following: Dr. David Jayne Hill, former U. S. Minister to Switzerland and the Netherlands, is quoted in the Literary Digest of December 1, 1917, as saying: The world as we knew it before August 1, 1914, has ceased to be. Elbert Hubbard is quoted in the New York Press, dated January, 1915, (four months before his death), as saying: We are taking part in the making of a new world. Woodrow Wilson, in his well-known speech regarding the beginning of the world war, said: The world is on fire, and the metropolitan newspapers of New York quoted him as saying at Charlotte, N. C., on May 20, 1916: America is making trial of the problems of the New Day, and is this not the sign and dawn of a New Age? See then what a New Age we have come into!

The Literary Digest of Feburary 19, 1915, quotes the Baptist Standard of Chicago as follows: It admits little doubt of the fact that we shall face an entirely New World when the war is over, and we even go a step farther in accepting the New World as already with us. Summing up, the Tacoma News Tribune of January 2, 1919, states in an editorial: The end of the world has already been accomplished. There has been no literal destruction of the visible universe, or even of our little earth, but all the ideas, beliefs, prejudices, political systems which made the world of the past are being consumed. Thought in every line is new.

"Pastor Raber asks: If the Gentile times ended in 1914 what have they been doing the past seven years? He answers his own query thus: The Gentiles have been making history faster the past seven years than in any life period in the history of the world.

"We believe and teach that the same bible chronology that pointed out the world-war in 1914, and enabled Pastor Russell to proclaim its coming many years prior to that date, points out with equal clearness the beginning of world-wide restoration in 1925. Some scoffed (II Peter 3:3-8) at our predictions regarding 1914, and, strangely enough, were as sure as Rastor Raber seems to be that our chronology was all wrong, that it should have started from any other date but 606 B. C. Stranger still, the world-war totally disregarded the wise statements of these learned gentlemen, and began on time anyway. Now history repeats itself. Let us examine the argument of the reverend gentleman regarding 606 B. C. First, he says Babylon was the fourth empire.

"Nowhere do we dispute that there were great empires prior to that of Nebuchadnezzar, but we do hold that none of them were world powers from God's standpoint, because as long as Jehovah had an independent typical kingdom upon earth, (at that time the Jewish kingdom) no empire could be a world-wide government.

Hence, when Nebuchadnezzar captured Jerusalem his became the first Gentile world government. (See Daniel 2:36-38.)

Boston Firemen Read Blue Prints

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 18.—Boston firemen today must be readers of blue prints as well as fire fighters.

Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy has just furnished to each station charts showing the layout of the water supply system, including the location of water mains in their respective districts. Firemen are directed to study the blueprints so that in time of fire, engines and other apparatus may be stationed at the most effective points.

It has sometimes happened that apparatus using hydrants on "dead end" mains have suffered diminution of the water supply when other engines, responding to later alarms, have been stationed at hydrants nearer the source.

Rumors of King's Visit Are False

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 18.—Rumors that King Christian of Denmark is shortly to pay an official visit to the United States are unfounded.

The rumors probably arose from the fact that many influential Danes and Americans living at present here of the opinion that an official visit to America by the King and Queen would be likely to further strengthen the natural bonds of friendship between the two nations. They also thought that it was desirable the King should go as his own ambassador and express Denmark's gratitude toward America for her valuable aid in getting back Danish Slesvig from Germany.

HOLD GUARD IS RESPONSIBLE FOR SHOOTING

Manslaughter Charge To Be Preferred For Prisoner's Death

Firing on Man Declared Unjustifiable By Jury

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Sept. 18. George Thornton, guard at the Washington State penitentiary here, will be charged with manslaughter for having shot dead Guy Monroe, negro convict, yesterday, District Attorney Benson announced today.

Circumstances attending the death of Guy Monroe, negro convict at the state penitentiary who was shot and killed yesterday by George Thornton, guard, were such as "not to justify a reasonable belief" in the guard's mind "that it was necessary to shoot in order to protect" the other guard from attack, the coroner's jury declared in its verdict today. The jury also found that the guard did not shoot with intent to kill the prisoner.

The matter is now in the hands of the county attorney, Earl Benson, the coroner, Joseph Chamberlain announced.

"It was testified that Monroe had been kept standing against a wall several hours as punishment for having tried to escape. He asked for water. Guard Henderson placed a pan at his feet.

Convict witnesses stated that as Henderson turned away, Monroe took two steps in his direction, heedless of Guard Thornton's warning to halt. They said Monroe made no move to attack, but was "making funny noises with his mouth."

Thornton shot Monroe in the leg, severing an artery.

350 Arrested in Los Angeles Raids

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—Approximately 350 persons were arrested in a series of raids conducted by the police upon alleged gambling resorts in the downtown business section here this afternoon.

More than 200 men were found in the basement of a building at Third and Spring streets, one of the places raided. Chief of Police Charles A. Jones, who headed the police squad that visited this place, ordered them all taken to police headquarters.

The automobile equipment of the police department was found inadequate to handle the prisoners and private trucks were pressed into service. Several raiding parties sent in gambling paraphernalia in addition to prisoners.

Three Escaped Prisoners Caught

SALT LAKE, Sept. 18.—Three of the five men who broke for freedom last Wednesday from the Utah penitentiary are back in their cells today. Terrified by fire of the guards, they hid within the prison wall attic. Famished, they accepted the invitation of the warden to come out when he discovered them last night.

The returned prisoners are James Miller, Frank Smith and Stanley Shadlow. Two others, Edward Harris and Oscar Blaney have not been captured. Blaney is thought to have been wounded in the ankle by a rifle shot of a guard.

U. S. Delegates to Arms Parley Stand Out as Political Leaders

An examination of the personnel of the American delegation to the conference on limitation of armament reveals that it differs quite radically and in various ways from the delegation named by President Wilson to represent this country at the Versailles peace conference.

Mr. Wilson headed the commission to Versailles himself and dominated it by direct leadership. His associates were not outstanding political leaders; they were men chosen with the idea that they were to be merely the executors of his orders.

On the other hand, the delegation chosen by President Harding does not include himself and is composed of men who have distinct places of their own in American pubic life, apart from their association with the president. Secretary Hughes was the Republican candidate for president in 1916, while the other two Republicans on the delegation, Mr. Root and Senator Lodge, have been regarded in convention after convention as presidential possibilities. Senator Underwood, the Democratic member of the delegation, is not a "Harding Democrat," but a virile partisan, leader of the minority in the upper branch of congress, who has been discussed for the Democratic presidential nomination in years past.

The Harding appointees differ radically from the delegates to Versailles also in that all are lawyers. Root and Hughes have been leaders of the New York bar for years. Underwood is in active practice. Lodge is a lawyer, though he has devoted most of his life to literature and politics.

Mr. Wilson, on the other hand, disliked and distrusted lawyers, and practically ignored them in making up the Versailles delegation.

It is also significant that while Mr. Wilson ignored the senate in his selection of peace delegates, two of the four Americans named as delegates to the arms conference are senators and a third, Mr. Root, is an ex-senator.

Yesemite Visited By British Royalty

MERCED, Sept. 18.—British royalty was well represented in the travel to the Yosemite Valley yesterday. In one party was Sir Walter Boyd of London, a member of the House of Lords. He was accompanied by his mother and a secretary. In another party was Lady Whitman-Baker, in early days a resident of Kern county. She came to America to attend to legal matters and is taking the opportunity of visiting her former home and the Yosemite. She is eighty years old.

Activity Shown by Lindsay Methodists

LINDSAY, Sept. 18.—At the annual business meeting of the Methodist church of this city, reports from the various societies showed marked progress in every department. The church raised $1500 for benevolent purposes outside of the current budget and the Sunday school contributed $650 for similar purposes. Nearly 100 persons were taken into the church during the year.

The return of the pastor, Rev. Thomas L. Borden, was asked in a resolution passed by the board. This request was seconded by a resolution presented by the Epworth League.

Lindsay Wins Prize For Artistic Display

LINDSAY, Sept. 18.—Lindsay was awarded first prize at the Tulare Livestock and Agricultural show for the most artistic display. This consisted chiefly of enlarged pictures of local and county scenes, and Lindsay's cups, won at various orange shows, formed an attractive part of the display.

At the recent state fair Lindsay received first award for Valencia oranges notwithstanding the lateness of the season. The fruit was selected from Mrs. E. B. Young's grove and was packed under the direction of R. G. Rooke of the Hillside company.

This city also received second prize on grapefruit and third on lemons at the state fair.

Paving Program at Newman Is Modified

NEWMAN, Sept. 18.—Slight modification of the city's paving program, which, when completed, will be the most comprehensive in this part of the state for a city of equal size, was made at the meeting of the town trustees Tuesday evening.

At the request of the property owners affected, the paving on South P street is extended one block from Merced to Stanislaus and the paving on Tulare street from O to P street, which was originally included, is to be omitted for the present.

WHAT YOU WANT IS All That Really Counts
—and in this business of buying and selling stoves the merchant who does not say that—believe that—live it, must yield his place in dealing with Mr. and Mrs. Public to his far-sighted neighbor.
In general qualities Mr. and Mrs. Public are going to demand pretty much the same thing—they will run pretty close to form.
In special features to suit individual requirements their demands are going to be varied—and the merchant who recognizes this fact must eventually enjoy the reward of his foresight.
"We want a stove that will be long lived—good quality of material. It must be economical in the use of fuel. It will have to perform properly."
Then the Mrs. adds, "Yes, and it must be good looking, easy to clean and keep clean, and easy to operate."
And they both insist "the price must be fair."
There is the composite demand of Mr. and Mrs. Public in buying stoves.
For thirty-five years, or thereabouts, we have heard these words or words to that effect.
And this year in elaborating our stove sales department we have been constantly guided by that experience.
In "The Quality Trio" we have [illegible] here in this space we have what our experience tells us to be the stoves of their various kinds best suited to satisfy Mr. and Mrs. Public—the market today offers nothing better.

WHOM "GOD" HATH JOINED

The New York Episcopal clergyman who has announced his coming marriage to a lady who has already been twice married and twice divorced, is not to have the honor of being wedded in church, if his bishop can help it. The Bishop desires to enforce in spirit and in fact the stand of the Episcopal church against divorce for all except spiritual reasons and against remarriages that shall result from such divorces. The vestry of the clergyman are said to be so far silent as to whether they approve or disapprove of his proposed union.

Probably they are silent because too many of them are in situations that prevent them from noisily throwing stones.

But we cannot help from having considerable sympathy with the bishop. We can understand why, aside from pure considerations of consistency and respect for church enactment, he should object to such a flouting of social proprieties.

Not that we oppose the remarriage of divorced persons. We think that such remarriage is the finest thing that can happen to them, all other things being suitable.

The scriptural admonition against divorce is in line with common sense. "Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." There is no legal language about it. It does not say, whom the justice of the peace hath joined together, let no man put asunder. Nor does it say, whom the clergyman of some particular church hath joined together, let no mon put asutider. The sanctity of the marriage, "whom God hath joined together," goes as directly to the heart of the matter as is the intervention of God in all other human affairs. We are all certain that God does intervene in human relationships, but we would be hardly men to be dogmatic and declare that one particular act is the act of God and that another is not.

And there is no scriptural nor any other injunction against remarriage. When the separation has been accomplished, it is accomplished. When that separation of spirit has occurred, which junction God brought about, the folly of a legal insistence upon illegal or unmoral consequences or upon human penalties on an assumption of spiritul ordinances, is bad public and bad spiritual policy. For marriage is a natural state, and should be encouraged under all fitting circumstances.

The case of the Episcopal rector is very different. To assume that he should not marry whom he pleases would be a violation of proper human freedom. But assume that he has a right to marry a woman whose relation to accepted social uses has been irregular, is to deny the responsibility of the ministerial relation. After all, there is a priesthood of God, which none can flout. There is a subservience to duty, which cannot be modified. And the man who assumes these duties, if he is to be a man and a man of God at the same time, must demonstrate by his character that he can do what other men have no need nor call to do.

Every church, in its own way, interprets what this line of duty shall be for its clergy. And these conceptions of what the duty of the clergy is differs widely.

But there must be some conception of this duty, and it must be clung to. Or the whole value of the priesthood to the laity will be wiped out. This priesthood rests on something much more spiritual than mere ordination. There is many a Salvation Army captain, many a humble mission worker, many a licentiate Methodist preacher, many a humble servant of the living God who knows nothing of seminaries, that has been baptized in spirit as a servant of the living God. And there is many a clergyman of high estate whose life is a mockery of the ordination vows that he has taken.

This priesthood requires some severance from the usual human freedom of choice. How much that severance shall be is a matter about which judgments vary widely. But all agree that there must be a consecration.

Such a consecration will not be defiant of social duty. It will recognize the "flocks that are to be fed" as well as the body that is to be served. Such a consecration should have prevented, without a question, such an embarrassment as the bishop of New York is finding in the conduct of his diocesan, the rector of the Church of the Ascension.

GLARING HEADLIGHTS

Warning has been issued by officials of the state motor vehicle department, threatening to refuse registration to agencies of motor companies that place upon the market cars that are not properly lighted.

This is a proper tracing of the trouble to its source.

The purchasing of an automobile in California from an authorized agent of a company in regular standing has a right to assume that his car conforms to law.

True, the police department of cities or counties cannot look upon it in this way. The man who is driving a car is supposed to know that it is equipped according to law, and he is liable to arrest if it does not conform. But this process of securing law and order by penalizing violators is a long and imperfect course. It is much better to be logical about it. And the logic of it is that the maker and the seller of the car should know that the car is in lawful form. It should be made inconvenient for the agent that attempts to do business with unlawfully equipped cars.

True, it may be difficult for the manufacturer of cars in Michigan to make his cars conform to the laws in the other forty-seven states. But at least he should have familiarity enough with the requirements of auto driving to permit his cars to be adjusted in each state to the peculiarities of state enactment. And it should be the primary business of the state agency to see that cars under their supervision do conform to law.

The principle of "let the buyer beware" whether his car is fitted to the traffic regulations adds to the hazard of the general public. And this hazard is now too great. At best, the number of eccentric drivers, drivers either careless or ignorant or indifferent to the Volstead act, make a menace of being on the highways. And an appreciable part of the difficulty of driving at night is due to glaring headlights.

Headlights must adapt themselves to two requirements. They must be sufficiently bright to light the roadway, so that the auto motorist may go ahead at a reasonable rate of speed. And it must be dim enough so that the oncoming car driver shall not be stupefied by the glare. The last is too frequent a happening, because it pleases the motorist to be able to see his own way. Often as many as one in six of the cars one meets at night are glaring, so bright that for the moment the oncoming driver is confused. As between the right of one car to go fast and of the other not to be confused, the first must be required to go as slowly as to fit into the general conditions of travel.

The state motor vehicle department should be upheld in its determination to require uniformity in motor cars sales to fit law requirements.

ANIMAL INTELLIGENCE

Men are apt to refer to their own more physical instincts as "animal" and their more intellectual or more ultimately purposeful reactions as "spiritual."

It is to be questioned, however, whether any such distinction can be made. Or if made, whether it is a fair one to the great world of which we are only a part. While it is true that in mankind we have a development of the power of reason, we have no reason to know that life as a whole is not conscious of emotional values as pure, or has not a subtlety of reverence as acute as is our own.

Aside from this speculation, however, it is interesting to note to what extent mankind is dependent, even for his higher cultural activities, on the pioneering of lowlier intelligences.

For instance, it has often been pointed out that the trails through our mountains, now being transformed into more or less easy highways, were first pioneer trails and before that Indian trails. And before that, they were the trails made use of by the bear and other wild animals.

Again as an instance, it has been noted that the recent and more intelligent plan for a grade up to Pine Ridge in the vicinity of Toll House, is being planned not where the Wood Brothers built their pioneer road in the late Sixties, but around another side of the peak, where in fact there was a trail used by previous hunters, and by the Indians. The more intelligent the engineer, the more likely he is to search out and make use of the inclines and levels that were sought through the instincts of the primitive life.

A recent road bulletin of the state of Missouri gives fresh illustration to these facts. It points out that the cross-state highways of Missouri were originally Indian trails, and preceding that had been the paths of wild animals through the forests and the prairies. What were originally the courses taken by animals to their watering places, or through the territory on their seasonal wanderings for food and shelter, later became the trails of the Indians. They sought their better hunting grounds or went on the war path by the easiest and most fruitful roads. And in their turn, the pathfinders, from DeSoto on, and later the hunters and the farmers from the East and the state road builders, pursued the same directions.

Road building has become one of our most highly developed arts. But it owes a debt to primitive nature. And so do most of our other arts.

STATE COLLEGE OPENS

The opening of the State College this morning is one more auspicious step in the development of this central California institution.

Its fine enrollment of students is a confirmation of the feeling that there was a demand for a higher institution of learning than had yet been developed for this city.

Its faculty roll is a guaranty of reward to the young people who seek training and culture within its walls.

A university standard is being set in its academic branches. A strict conformity to educational requirements is being set in those departments which lead to the teaching profession.

But we are given an assurance that the purpose of the institution will never be narrowly directed toward a "certificate" of any sort. The young men and young women who come to the State Teachers' College for an education will leave it both better equipped for life and with a better understanding of what life has to offer them and should give them.

The Little Girls Who Go To Work

Modesta Hannis Jordan in N. Y. Times

The little girls who go to work,
So neat they are, so sweet they are;
Their garments fashioned modishwise,
So clear, courageous, are their eyes,
I whisper as they pass me by,
"God bless you, every one!"

The little girls who go to work,
Have stopped their play; the workaday
Too soon has come with crackling care.
Their youthful shoulders burdens bear.
And yet with courage smile they all
As 'long their way they go.

The little girls who go to work,
Their purses share that meagre fate
Of those they love may fuller be,
Nor find they fault with destiny
That they youth's freedom must forego
While sunny hours slip by.

The little girls who go to work,
The mothers, they, of some near day,
Their arms to hold the nation's men.
This knowing, let us love them, then,
And let them know we love them while
The whirring wheels fly round.

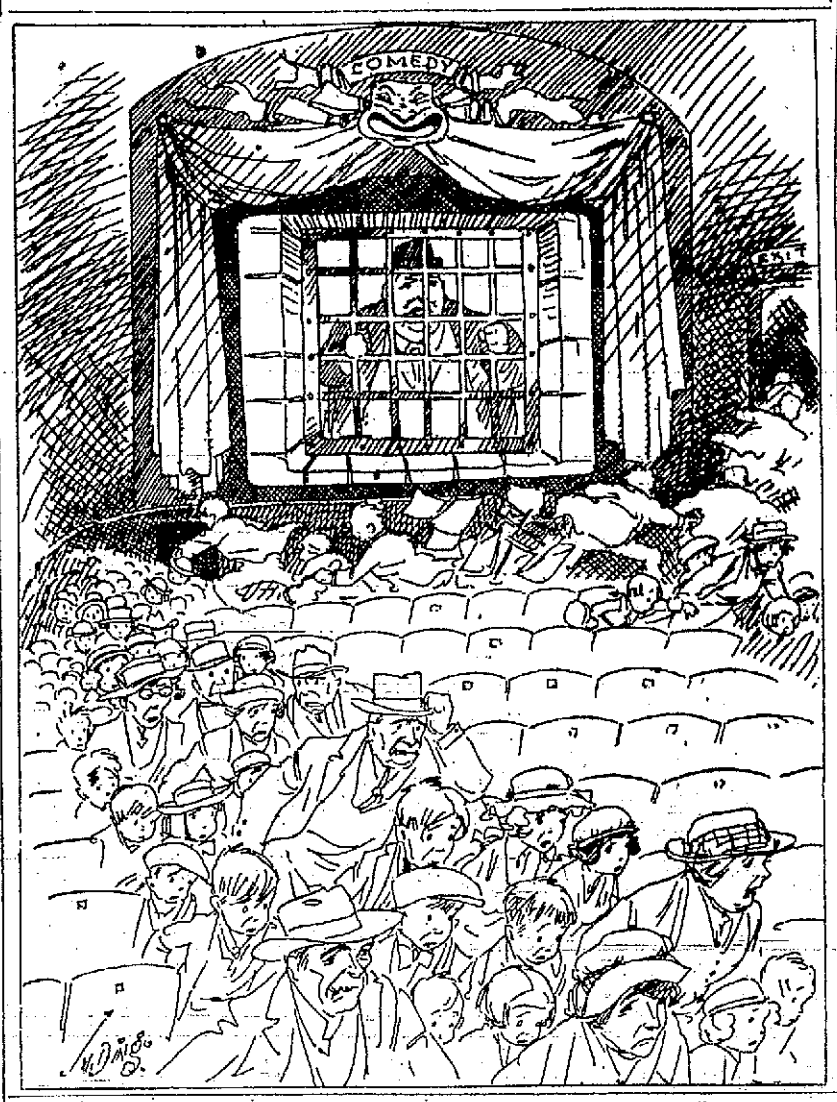

So long as there are people on earth who advocate child labor, Tophet need not worry about a labor supply.

When battleships are obsolete, perhaps the world will be free to do something about its obsolete friendships.

Civilization is becoming hard-boiled, according to an English writer. So that's it; we feared it was becoming addled.

Hootch prescriptions remind us of the farmer who kept the road sprinkled with tacks and made his living aciling patches.

THE OVER SALARIED FOOL

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

Get On The Right Road

Education teaches you to know the road. You have to do your own travelling. Right roads are plentiful. But there is a best one for you.

Get on that and you will prosper-provided you spend enough hours a day in going ahead.

Get on the wrong one and you may still prosper—yet it will take you longer and you will not get so far.

Take the little alluring by-path that looks easy, and you will have a pleasant time for a while.

Then you will be hopelessly lost, and never get anywhere.

If you can get no school education your natural inclination ought to guide you in road selection.

You can never be sure however without some sort of education. And if it is impossible to get it from schools, you will have to get it in your hall bedroom or your backwoods cabin or wherever you happen to be.

Education begins in the minds of men. But the best in the minds of men they put into books. And with a little more trouble and a little more effort, you can find it there by yourself.

When you know what there is in the world that men can do, you can pick the road that is best for you to travel.

Find out what you like best to do, and do that. But first be sure that you will like it best ten years from now, as well as now.

If you think it is movie acting you like best, you are probably on the wrong road. That needs a special talent, which few people possess.

If you think it is authorship or painting, consult somebody who knows and can tell you if you have talent in either line. If you haven't, you have picked another wrong road.

Colleges are excellent starting places for young men and women because they help them to find themselves. They are fine guide books to the right roads of life.

But they are by no means necessary. The main thing is to be sure the road is passable, and then bend all your energies to traveling on it.

No right road is easy, but they all lead some where, and, if you follow them long enough and hard enough, you will be sure to arrive.

Twenty Years Ago Today

IN MEMORIUM

With Dastard hand and coward blow,
And heart aflame with hellish hate,
Against the true the good, the great,
A fiend struck down our Chief of State.
He who from wrong was far removed;
He who in war a hero proved;
He who in peace was well beloved;
Was done to death at Buffalo.

Toll, Canton's bells, toll sad and slow,
That called the people forth to pray
To God to staunch the wound and stay
The tide that ebbed his life away!
His wisdom hath not granted this:
And hushed at last in Death's abyss;
Cold lips give back no answering kiss
To her bereft at Buffalo!

Toll, solemn bells! toll soft and low,
Thou consers full of moans and sighs,
And tears that scald the people's eyes!
Swing 'neath the Sad September skies.
Toll to the gales that 'round thee sweep—
The stars that silent vigil keep—
How mothers wail and comrades weep,
For him who fell at Buffalo!

Toll, mournful bells, speak out our woe!
Thy tongues proclaim our Chieftain dead;
That stricken hearts at last have bled;
Of millions all uncomforted!
From belfry tower—near or remote—
There never swelled a sadder note,
Than wells up from thy brazen throat,
O'er him who died at Buffalo!

Toll, funeral bell, while hot tears flow!
Today we lay him in the earth;
And, gathering round the Nation's hearth,
The grief of millions proves his worth!
God's pity on the widow's head!
God's blessing fill a husband's stead!
God's peace be with our noble dead,
So foully slain at Buffalo!

TRAGEDY IN THE HOUSE OF MIRTH

From the Kansas City Star

The question, What is the matter with the movies? is always being asked, and every little while we get the answer.

Sudden and undeserved wealth is principally what is the matter with the movies. Money falling into unaccustomed hands, releasing them from the work they were formed to do; dazzling common minds with visions of disorderly pleasures, awaking gluttonous desires in undisciplined hearts; turning unskilled laborers into unskilled millionaires. That is what is the matter with the movies.

A new '49 has come to California. They have struck pay dirt in the movies and from all over the country the rush of the adventurous, the unprosperous and the lawless has peopled the studio cities with an eager and fevered crowd of seekers after the new wealth, the easy wealth, the wealth that transforms in a twinkling cotton shirts into silk and as is fondly supposed—common clay into porcelain.

Wealth will not do that, of course. But as long as there are those who think it will its sudden acquisition will bring the results movie wealth has brought. A masquerade in which a crew of creatures like those described by Milton, half human and half swine, reel in a drunken dance of death. The picture art, like Milton's enchanted lady, sits bound and helpless in the midst of this obscene revel, shamed by it, disgraced by it, but a captive until the spell is broken and the revelers dispersed. The heart of the wise, says the Preacher, is in the house of mourning, but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.

Movie millions have made a house of mirth of the movie fool. The other day he worked for his bread and probably didn't fully earn it, but now, gilded over by the waving of a wand and appearing like gold but still base metal underneath, he is out to buy with his new and unearned millions the things he has been told money will buy. He flings it to the winds like rain, careless of the price so it brings him pleasures. He thinks it will buy anything his greedy eye fastens on. He flings down the price in the only medium he knows and reaches for it.

What movie wealth must be taught is that it will not buy everything. Least of all can it buy immunity from obligations to decency and law. Where it becomes insolent and defiant it must be shown there is a power greater than itself. Where sudden wealth dizzies the brains and loosens the evil in the hearts of fools, they must learn that discipline of life which it was their misfortune to have missed in the days when they worked for their bread.

Now while the revelry is hushed for a moment let the fools look at the end it has come to, and hear again the words of the Preacher: I said of laughter, it is mad; and of mirth, What doeth it?

SAYS THE PACIFIC OCEAN IS SINKING

From the Washington Post

If the earth lasts 1,000,000 years, the Pacific ocean will be at such a low level that much of the land now used as its bed will be redeemed and many American cities may come into existence miles west of San Francisco and Seattle. This is the opinion of Dr. T. Hamilton Fraser, of New York a scientist, who has studied glacier formations and who advances the theory as originally his own.

"Charles Darwin, James Hana and other world-known scientists years ago made a study of the problem which has been attached to the Pacific ocean since men began to know that this great body of water sinks perceptibly year after year. The subsidence, or what is more commonly known as the sinking of the Pacific, has baffled scientists for hundreds of years. Even at this day there is an expedition in the South seas studying the coral formations there with a view of determing their relationship with the subsidence of the Pacific. This expedition is under the auspices of the American and Japanese governments. The theory is advanced that the atolls, or coral islands, were built up gradually from deposits from the ocean while the Pacific gradually sought lower levels and sank. This theory is the outgrowth of another one—that the great glaciers of the ice age took so much water from the ocean in the formation of so many million tons of ice that the ocean level dropped about 10 fathoms.

"Whatever these theories may amount to—and there are a great many reasons for believing they are dependable—the fact remains that the Pacific ocean is gradually seeking a lower level; that its bed is being worn deeper, so to speak, and that its banks are being made more extensive, reclaimed for the use of mankind."

DOLLARS AND CENTS IN THE RAINDROPS

Bulletin, National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Rain might be looked upon as the oil which lubricates the world's economic machinery," says a bulletin issued from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society in connection with recent reports of world-wide drought damage to crops.

"With the smallest estimated cotton crop since 1893," continues the bulletin, "with spring wheat in poor condition at home as well as in many of the other wheat countries of the world, with other important crops below their average, and with drought cast as the villain, or at least as an accomplice, in each case, the difference that a few showers make in humanity's scheme of things is strongly emphasized.

"While everybody realizes in a general way that the world depends on rainfall and fertility for food, there are very few, perhaps, who even approximately appreciate how comparatively little the farmer actually does in the great process of crop-growing. To plow millions of acres furrow by furrow, to spend millions of dollars on fertilizers, and to reap and gather and thresh, is no mean task. And yet compared with the part that nature plays in the process, man's work seems a very slight labor. For instance, it takes about 20 inches of rainfall to grow a food crop under our general farming methods, which means about 3,200 tons of water to the acre. That seems a preposterous figure, but the doubter can easily demonstrate its correctness. Suppose the American farmer had to haul the water his ground must have to give him a good crop, and that the distance and freight rate were the same as the average railroad haul and rate in the United States. On that basis, it would cost him more than $4,000 an acre to water his place.

"But not only would his water bill be nearly half a million dollars on a 100-acre farm, but his fertilizer bill, also, would amount to a neat little sum. It is estimated that in the process of normal evaporation, soil water presents the rootlets of its neighborhood with about fourteen pounds of ammonia a year to the acre. Also, it gives them 57 pounds of potash. With sulphate of ammonia costing only 2 cents a pound (it cost 5 1-2 during the war) and a hundred pounds of the sulphate required to contribute 17 pounds of ammonia, it will be seen that the process of evaporation gives the rootlets $1.85 worth of ammonia to the acre.

"When the World War cut off German supplies of potash and it soared to $400 a ton, geologists scoured the United States for the priceless fertilizer with little success. Yet the process of evaporation generously hands out more than half a hundredweight to the acre, in war and peace. This automatic fertilization is worth an additional $2.50 an acre to the farmer at present prices, and would have cost him $10 an acre at war prices.

"From this it will be seen that the $12 to $25 an acre that it costs the average farmer to grow wheat is a small figure indeed, compared to what he saves by having Nature as his water wagon and fertilizer source."

A Bunch of Luck

Well sir, folks,
Isn't it a fact,
As my old father
Used for to say,
That it never rains
But it pours.
Here is this lad,
Mister Harry Barbour,
Got to come back
To the San Joaquin valley
For a visit
From Washington, D. C.
And meet all his friends
All over the valley,
And all of them
Laughed at his jokes
Till their sides ached,
And a body would think
That a thing like that
Would be pleasure enough
And good luck enough
For any person,
But his good luck
Stayed with him
At the American Legion
The other evening
When he went there
To do a little
Daniel Webstering
And got mixed up
In a friendly raffle
For a couple of seats
Out at the grandstand
In the Fair Grounds.
He invested in a chance
And the lucky number
Was thirteen
And he got it.
And he's so pleased
That when you go up
To his office
To talk solemn talk
About the condition
Of our nation
And the after effects
Of the great war
And the opening
Of the magnesite mines
And the tariff on hides,
And all such-like,
And sit sort of timid-like
On the edge of your chair
Waiting for weighty counsels
To pour from his lips
He's just as apt
To get out those tickets
And count them,
One—two, one—two,
And tell how he got them
And grin about it.
And the funny thing is
That he wont be here
To use them,
But he never seems
To think of that.
I keep wondering
Who he'll give 'em to
And I had thoughts
For a little while
To try to coax him
Into a poker game,
But Judge Cashin
Warned me about that.
The Judge tells me
That in the bad old days
Before reform got us
And before Mister Barbour
Got into Congress
That he played
A wicked hand
In a poker game
At oddwhiles,
And that I'd better
Watch a little out.
How do you suppose
The Judge knows that?

More Truth Than Poetry
By James J. Montague

Watch Your Glance!

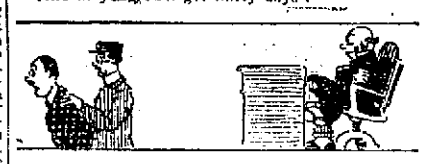

A Chicago judge fined a man five dollars for giving him a "nasty look."

It is easy enough to be honest,
It is easy enough to be good;
You will not go to jail unless haply you fail
To behave as a gentleman should.
Keep your hands out of other folks' pockets,
Be civil, as onward you trudge,
Be placid of mind, gentle mannered and kind,
And never look cross at a judge!

You may scowl at a street car conductor,
You may frown at a grocery clerk,
You may take a long chance and disgustedly glance
At the fellow who sings at his work.
You may even look back at a lawyer,
But when judges you happen to view,
Do not ever appear to be wearing a sneer,
It will cost you five bucks if you do.

The silken gowned gents on the benches
Whose job is to lay down the law,
Are certain to get rather badly upset
If we do not regard them with awe,
It matters not what is your station,
Neither wealthy nor poor are exempt,
They will all have to pay if they dare to betray
The tiniest sign of contempt.

And so, when you sit in a court room
To watch some sensational trial,
Be sure that you wear, as about you you stare,
A meek and subservient smile.
For your eyes may collide with the judge's,
And if you're too bold with your gaze,
Or your glance is malign, you'll be sure of a fine,
And maybe you'll get thirty days.

ROWELL SPEAKS ON DEVELOPING STATE'S POWER

Declares Coast Leads Country in Utilizing Energy

Says Public Utilities Are Essential in Everyay Life

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 18.—The official opening and dedication of the new Kern Canyon Power House of the San Joaquin Light & Power Corporation took place Saturday afternoon and evening before an assemblage of 1100 in the face of weather uncertainties which prevented many from making the 18 mile trip from Bakersfield.

State Railroad Commissioner Chester H. Rowell, in making the principal address of the day said in part:

"From the limited beginnings of earlier time the electrical development of California has gone on until California leads the world. The Pacific Coast has now realized that which the rest of the nation is merely trying to work towards. The U. S. Government has a survey in progress to ascertain if they cannot, upon the eastern shore, link up the various power plants that exist at present and those of the future, so that they can, in future, do on the Atlantic coast that which on the Pacific has already been done. On this, our coast, the development of hydro-electric power has progressed to this point after having passed the stages of fuel power of different kinds until today we have reached a point of development unequaled anywhere in the whole world. Co-operation has been one of the big factors in reaching this point. In development work the electric power companies working together just as they co-operate and work together in delivering electrical power in order to effect the best possible service for the consumer.

"I spoke for a few minutes at the dedication of the Kerckhoff plant and little thought that at the Kern Canyon plant I should be thru in a semi-official capacity. At Kerckhoff I was in a purely personal and unofficial capacity. Speaking of my reference to my semi-official capacity, I may say that it is part of my duty to see that the power companies treat you fairly and that you in turn treat them fairly.

"Public utilities are an essential part of our everyday life. The question is how best to maintain them. At first we undertook to treat them as private businesses and subsequent developments showed us the desirability of a reasonable degree of regulation. There is tint example of the railroads of this country with which it became necessary to develop a new principle in handling these public utilities.

"The primary need of public regulation is and must be to provide service at fair rates. One of the elements in making service possible is fair rates. These rates must be high enough to make the service possible and low enough to be fair to the people. If these rates are either too high or too low calamity will inevitably follow. you are all familiar. Fortunately for the power companies they were able to profit by the experience of the railroads in their relationship with the public and with themselves. They learned a great deal by that experience.

"The idea of public ownership, if carried into effect, in many cases would mean public ownership precipitated before its time. In some cases the effect would be to establish rates too low to furnish service. It is highly essential that public ownership should not be precipitated prematurely.

"I do not see any reason, in theory, why the development of power, which is an essential of business, should not work out effectively under public ownership, but practice has demonstrated differently.

"It is very necessary to remember that the basis of regulation of public utilities is one-half to see that the rate for the service is low enough, and the other half that the service as nbe effectually rendered. It is a question of even justice, as between to consumer and the corporation. The proper maintenance of public control over public utilities, can only be successfully carried out on this basis. It must be fair to the people, and not unduly restrictive to the corporation, so as not to hamper it in conducting its business in the most effective manner. By working to these principles, you will best realize the service to which you are entitled, and make it possible for the power companies to continue in our great industrial system, of which they are such an essential part."

Other speakers were William G. Kerckhoff, president of the San Joaquin Light & Power Corporation; A. G. Wishon, vice president and managing director; Rev. Willis G. White, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Bakersfield; Col. J. F. Dearth, first superintendent of the original Kern canyon power house, and Rex C. Starr, construction engineer of the San Joaquin Light & Power Corporation.

A program of sporting events and dinner was followed by motion pictures and dancing. Music was transmitted from the Fairmount Hotel orchestra in San Francisco by means of a new wireless apparatus perfected by E. D. Lemert, a radio engineer of Bakersfield. A very beautiful feature in the evening was an illuminated waterfall 250 feet high.

conditions is to yield to a force that ignores the law while claiming to have respect for government. It must be remembered that a very large proportion of the men who have quit the service of the companies have done so out of fear and would gladly return to work at once if they could do so without danger of harm.

"The companies have no personal quarrels with their employes. They feel that the employes have not only been badly led, but badly misinformed. Union officials are demanding that an obligation taken on by the government that during the last year has not been exercised in at least half of the industry of this state, and which is not exercised elsewhere at all in the industry, and which applied to industry generally in the United States would inevitably mean socialization. It is conceivable that a self-supporting commonwealth would apathetically yield to the super-government set up by certain strikers in the oil districts, riding over the rights of both men and property guaranteed by our government."

The statement was drawn up at a meeting of the association here Saturday. The association was formed on Friday. At Saturday's meeting M. H. Whittier, Los Angeles, was made president; A. F. L. Bell, San Francisco, and D. S. Ewing, Fresno, vice presidents; L. P. St. Clair, E. W. Clark, Los Angeles; Paul Shoup, A. C. Dierlex, Allard D'Heur, Lionel Barneson and C. J. out of which vast benefits will accrue for Japan.

The world can appreciate the necessity for industrialization that confronts Japan. It is a matter of life and death. Likewise can the world say to Japan "Seek your raw materials wherever nature has stored them, but seek those materials without inflicting injury upon the rights of others."

Now this summary: There is no menace in the necessity itself of the Japanese government's policy of industrialization. The real danger in that policy is its source.

If Japan will realize this much and rise above the level of European governments which throughout history have waged wars for material things, her contribution to humanity will be real.

—The management praised the work of all and dwelt on the fact that no task is too great when co-operation reigns.

—The following is a Special Delivery Miss Folden received just before store closing—Saturday.

—The final result showed—Miss Folden with four winnings—Mrs. Ayers, Allen and Mr. Aspinall, two each—Miss Lagarde and Mr. Golland, one each.

COOPER'S
Sept. 17, 1921.
My Dear Miss Folden:
It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you upon winning the "Buyer's Return Sale" banner.
You have worked hard and worked WELL for I understand each of your assistants have put forth their best efforts even to the extent of using their evenings inviting friends to make purchases during the sale. We do appreciate such co-operation and I will say your work has always been considered excellent.
I must acknowledge, Miss Folden, that I did not expect your department to win as it was my personal opinion that people were not looking for novelty goods and this more than anything else proves to me your ability as a department manager.
Again congratulating you and wishing you a successful season personally as well as for the store, I am
Very truly yours,

TURLOCK FARM PICNIC PROVES GREAT SUCCESS

All Stanislaus County Locals Represented At Celebration

Co-operation Urged As Best Means of Marketing

Special to The Republican.

TURLOCK, Cal., Sept. 18.—All of the locals of the Stanislaus farmers union were represented at a picnic held here today. The overcast weather kept many of the fruit growers away, especially those with raisins and prunes on the ground.

The visitors were welcomed by Mayor R. C. Geckler, who extended a hearty welcome to the city. At noon a basket lunch was enjoyed by the farmers and their families and then there was a program of speeches interspersed with music. The state secretary from Santa Clara, Fred Millars, told of the popularity of the California free market at San Francisco which he said was a boon to the housewife, and a realization of her ambition, the getting of her produce straight from the farmer being the dream of her life. He advocated that the farmers exhibit a little more care in the preparation of their shipments to the market as the time spent in that was quite worth while, and they did not want the market to suffer through carelessness.

Harry S. Maddox, state market director, was the champion of co-operation without which, he told the farmers, they could get nowhere.

He stated that the consumers should insist upon getting California goods every time they went into a store, and only by that means would the present trouble of carrying over from season to season immense quantities of California products be avoided. If everyone insisted upon California goods at the grocers there would be no carry over, he said, at present the storage and warehouses were filled with beans, rice, peaches, raisins, canned goods and many other of the products, a condition that would not obtain under co-operation.

J. J. Hardie, president of the farmers union, spoke of the functions of the union, stating that it was there for the benefit of all farmers to improve and assist in any line. The benefit of vocational training for the young were voiced by T. M. Alcorn, and Mrs. N. N. Harten brought a perfect picnic to a close with the recitation "A Farmer's Vision of City and Country Life."

EXPECT GOOD PRUNE PRICES

Growers Are Optimistic Over Outlook

VISALIA, Sept. 18.—Although the general prune crop of the county this season is reckoned as considerably lower than that of a year ago, some estimates placing it at 75 per cent of normal while others believe it will not exceed 50 per cent or normal, there is no evident moaning on the part of the prune growers who believe their crop, generally, is of better quality than in other years and who are firm in the opinion that the prune association will be able to get more for the fruit.

This season's picking, now in progress, is showing the results of the association teachings. Nearly one-half of the growers, it is said, are making two pickings of their crop, an early and a late shake, rather than knock all prunes from the trees at one time whether ripe or green. Many growers have always followed this more modern practice but excellent results are being secured this season by this method with the result that the short tonnage is not worrying the growers half as much as the shortage of help with which to gather it.

Modesto Schools Are Highly Complimented

VISALIA OPENS SCHOOLS TODAY

Capacity Enrollment Is Anticipated

VISALIA, Sept. 18.—With all arrangements completed the sound of the school bell will awaken the boys and girls of Visalia tomorrow morning, the one primary, four grammar schools and the high school resuming.

Although the building program for the Visalia Union High School is still held up by inability to dispose of the $112,000 bonds at a figure in keeping with the demands of the institution the board of trustees have prepared a program for this season which is considerably enlarged from that of last season and which, it is believed, can be added to during the term. The school is in need of additional buildings and facilities but the board is not inclined to dispose of the bonds at the low figure offered and is holding up the construction of new buildings including a gymnasium, chemistry building and enlarged quarters for other work until the conditions become better.

In the grammar and primary schools of the city it is felt this year's enrollment may tax the capacity generally but not to a point where it will be impossible to care for the classes.

Here the tick is loud, there low.

It speaks in time of joy; in time of grief; in time of idleness, or struggle and stress; in time of peace or war.

It never stops.

Always it is telling the old, old story of the clock: "Time Flies."

Always it is repeating the stern lesson of life, "The World Forgets."

ARTHUR KLEIN ENTERS FRESNO SPEED CLASSIC

Art Klein, one of the greatest racing drivers in the world today, has consented to race here and has shipped his car west from Indianapolis, according to word received from him by Manager H. E. Patterson. Klein will have a special car with a Deusenberg motor. It will be his first apeparance in Fresno. Klein has also consented to race at Los Angeles. The car he will pilot is owned by Ray Harroun, the famous pilot who won the first Indianapolis race years ago.

Frank Warner of Los Angeles has consented to act as official timer at the local race. Warner is the greatest timer of automobile classic in the United States, officiating at Beverly Hills and at Indianapolis among other places. His presence here will lend much prestige to the officials and will insure accuracy in timing.

Many famous personages are to be present at the San oJaquin Valley Classic which will be held on the Fresno Speedway October 1. Among them are Governor William Stephens, A. W. Young, president of the Los Angeles speedway, Francis O'Connor of the Cotati Speedway, Clyde Seaves, city manager of Sacramento, and other notables.

Those who pass Waterman Brothers garage at Fresno and U streets will see Eddie Miller's racer completely torn down. Eddie and his machancian, Bob Vicks are thorough in everything they do and before every race, they go over their car to see that it is in perfect condition. Eddie Hearne is just the opposite. He does not believe in continually tearing down the car and rebuilding it. He prefers leaving well enough alone and rarely, if ever, tears the car down except when some part is not working right.

A mysterious entrant has mailed his entry blank from Los Angeles and it is expected to arrive in Fresno this morning. He is said to drive a De Laga special with a new Miller engine. Who the driver is or what the car is, is not known. The driver, however, has written Patterson asking him to send an entry blank to Manager Young of the Los Angeles Speedway, stating that he would forward the entry at once upon receipt of it.

It is very probable that the twelve drivers who are to compete in the race here will head the caravan to the Hanford races next Saturday. They are to be asked to go, perhaps as honorary officials, and witness the dirt track events there. At least three of the pilots are not unaccustomed to the speedway there. They are Eddie Hearne, Frank Elliott and Tom Milton. The others who will be in the party if plans succeed, are Roscoe Sarles, Alton Soulas, Eddie Miller, Jimmy Murphy, Joe Thomas, John Thiele and Tom Alley. Eddie Meyer Jr., entered here, is racing at Hanford MADERA, Sept. 18.—In the most important and deciding game of the season, the Madera Coyotes defeated the Visalia Pirates by the score of 7 to 3 today before the biggest crowd that has ever attended a ball game here. By defeating Visalia Madera wins the pennant for the secon dhalf in the San Joaquin Valley League. Close to 1,000 visiting Visalia rooters saw their favorite Bill Steen batted hard and often by every Coyote slugger that faced him. After allowing fourteen hits, three of which were home runs, Steen gave way to Crandall, a left hander, who held the Coyotes to one hit and no runs in two innings.

Ray Keating, the leading twirler of the league, continued his great pitching for the locals, though eight hits were made by the visitors for three runs. He was invincible in the last three innings, striking out seven and putting them out without a h it or run.

Chris Mahoney starred at the bat for his club, securing three two-baggers in four times at bat. For the locals, Beals Becker led with four singles in four times up. But the real hittinf thrill of the day was crowded in two innings by Hern, Schils and Boles, each local clouting Steen for a healthy home run over the left field wall. Madera also out-fielded the visitors. Stadelle, the Coyote left fildr, mad a spetacular catch of a foul ball while running at top speed. Eddie Henn, the Pirate second sacker, also distinguished himself by several clever stops. After one more game Madera tackles Hanford in a series of games for the championship of the San Joaquin Valley League.

HANFORD, 5; BAKERSFIELD, 1.

HANFORD, Sept. 18.—Errors and inability to fathom Ralph Stroud's offerings lost the game for the Bakersfield Drillers here today to the Hanford Kings by the score of 5 to 1. Daring base running by Clyde Wares for Hanford, and his brilliant catch in the first inning and the fast fielding of Radebaugh in left garden for Bakersfield, were the outstanding features of the game, Harry Wolters and Claflin, on first and third corners for the Drillers put up a loose game. Dutch Rock hurling for the visitors allowed seven hits, while Stroud was touched for three. Score:

GIANTS CONTINUE WINNING STREAK

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The New York Giants have continued their winning streak and now enjoy a four and a half game lead in the National League. Barring a complete reversal the pennant appears to be firmly in their grasp.

The Yankees must play almost perfect ball to win the flag. The series here this week between New York and Cleveland may decide the race.

The week's games in both leagues were marked by heavy hitting and scoring.

LEADERS IN TORRID FLAG DRIVES AND A DARK HORSE IN NATIONAL

Branch Rickey, Cardinal boss, the dark horse; Manager McGraw of the Giants, center, and Miller Huggins, Yankee pilot, right. Below, Boss Tris Speaker of the Indians and George Gibson, manager of the Pittsburg Pirates.

Four teams are struggling, straining, fighting to the last breath in the greatest pennant scramble in baseball's history. In the American League the Yanks and Indians are fighting it out. In the National League the Pirates and Giants are battling for the lead. And, climbing rapidly in the last month, the St. Louis Cardinals, led by Branch Rickey, have made the other two teams worry. It would be possible for them to beat out either team.

DINUBA LEGION FORMS GRID TEAM

DINUBA, Sept. 18.—At a recent meeting of the American Legion Post No. 13 at Dinuba, it was definitely decided to again put a strong football team in the field to compete with the other valley teams.

A counting of noses establishedo the fact that most of the excellent material of last year's team will be available, together with some additions, which will make an even stronger team than ever before. In last season's Captain Nuss they have one of the fastest quarters in the valley, while they still have with them Bennie Tout, who for weight and speed behind the line has not met his equal. Other line men of last year's squad, available are Sanford, Matigon, Woods, Newman, Muncy and others.

The team will be coached by Benn H. Lewis, who is also coach of the high school team, and comes to Dinuba with a long record of successful football achievement behind him. Coach Lewis plans to use the high school and legion teams against each other, and in this manner build each team up to a fighting point.

In order to raise funds to be used in a preliminary start, the Legion will stage a big dance at the American Legion Hall on next Tuesday, Sept. 20. Tickets are already on sale, and the biggest crowd of the season is expected, as the Dinuba fans have always been strong boosters for their team.

LOCAL S.-O. NINE LOSES FOURTEEN INNING CONTEST

Bakersfield Nine Noses Out Locals

Battling for fourteen innings in one of the fastest games seen on the Holmes field this season, the Bakersfield Standard Oil Co. club took a hard fought game from the Fresno Standard Oil team by a four to two count yesterday afternoon.

Bakersfield drew first blood in the fifth inning and scored one run. The local team came back in the seventh and tied the count. The game then went runless until the eleventh frame when the Kern county gang pushed a tally across after two men were down. Fresno also scored in the eleventh when two men were down on an error by Johnson, Bakersfield shortstop who dropped Gatzs' pop fly which scored Brown. The Bakersfield club drove across the winning run in the fourteenth when Copeland singled and scored on an error.

The Bakersfield team touched the two Fresno pitchers, Mead and Ragle for twelve safties, but they were kept well scattered. The local club gathered eight bingles off Olsen.

The games was well attended and much rooting was in evidence for both clubs. The local team has games scheduled with a number of Standard Oil clubs throughout the state. They lost to Stockton in a return game on Holmes field last Sunday. A return game with the Bakersfield team is being arranged for by Fresno. Score:

Aged Ex-Senator Holds Celebration

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—Cornelius Cole, United States Senator from California from 1867 to 1873, celebrated his 99th birthday at his residence here today. A reception was arranged for this afternoon for members of his family and the Los Angeles Centenarians and Octogenarians clubs.

"If there is any merit in old age," Mr. Cole said today, "don't give me the credit. I couldn't help it.

"I have not lived long enough to find any great change in humanity. Aside from better physical conditions for living, people have not changed much.

"We had our scandals in the old days and we seem to have them yet."

Mr. Cole said he had not set a mark of any particular number of years he hopes to live.

"I am not ambitious," he said. "Guess I shall just keep on growing old as long as I can."

Steals Airplane; Crashes to Ground

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—An airplane which had been loaned to the Evanston police department by its owner, W. C. Burmeister, of Evanston, was stolen from its hangar early this morning by Frank Strand, who gave his address as Sioux City, Iowa, who was arrested several hours after he had wrecked the plane in a neighboring field.

Charles Heinz, a farmer, reported that he had helped disentangle the aviator from the wreckage and taken him to a doctor's office. Police traced the man, who admitted he had taken the plane.

Plead Guilty to Theft of Home

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 18.—Henry Newby and Jack Weir, accused jointly of entering the home of "Happy" Winslow, on South Hockett street, while the owner was away and stealing $60 in cash, pleaded guilty when arranged before Justice Max Jamison.

The pleas of guilty came after the preliminary hearing had progressed but a short time. Weir, it is said by the police, tried to make it appear that he went to Winslow's house with Newby to see Winslow, but Newby, apparently trying to clear himself, admitted he went into the house and obtained the money while Weir waited outside as a lookout. The sentence of the men has not yet been pronounced.

FLEMING CASE IN SHANGHAI IS IN PROMINENCE

Attracts Attention of Many Americans In China

Was Given Six Months Term For Contempt of Court

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18.—Americans in Shanghai are intensely interested in the case of William F. Fleming, an American attorney and head of a law firm here, who, on July 28, was sentenced by Judge Charles S. Lobingier, of the United States Court for China to serve a sentence of six months in the American prison in Shanghai for contempt of court.

After having served 13 days, his sentence was suspended by Judge Lobingier, pending a review of the contempt proceedings by the Ninth District United States Circuit Court of Appeals of California, to which the case is being taken on a writ of error. Mr. Fleming gave bail to the amount of $2,000 when released.

The case has developed into a sensation in legal circles largely because it was upon representations by Mr. Fleming that President Harding, early in August, ordered an investigation of the United States court in this city. Besides, Mr. Fleming is a prominent figure in the financial world of Shanghai, senior member of one of the leading American law firms of the Far East and the case has involved an attack by Mr. Fleming upon the integrity of Judge Lobinger and upon certain officers of his court.

The case also has brought into public notice the unusual position in which the United States Court for China functions under existing laws. As an example of this situation of the court, attorneys here point out that some months ago Judge Lobingler handed down a decision in a capital case to the effect that an American citizen may be tried for his life in that court—and be executed without privilege of trial by jury. This ruling was based on a decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Ross case which held that the guarantees given by the United States constitution "apply only to citizens and others within the United States or who may be brought there for trial for alleged offenses committed elsewhere, and not to residents or temporary sojourners abroad."

It is generally held by attorneys here also, that no change of venue may be granted in cases brought before the United States Court for China.

Mr. Fleming visited the State Department at Washington in the middle of the summer and, it was understood, presented criticisms of the United States court here which have not been made public. Soon after his return from Washington to Shanghai in July, he was arrested on a warrant charging him with criminal libel against Stirling Fessender, of Shanghai, a member of the law firm of which Major Chauncey P. Holcomb, United States District Attorney for China, was formerly a member.

At the preliminary hearing of the libel charge before a United States commissioner, Mr. Fleming made charges against the various court officials and others and alleged that he was the victim of a conspiracy.

Mr. Fleming repeated these charges in part when arraigned before Judge Lobingier in the United States Court, whereupon the Judge held him guilty of contempt of court and imposed the prison sentence. In controversion of these charges, eight affidavits have been filed in the court by officials and others accused by Mr. Fleming, all of which deny his charges against Judge Lobingier and the others. Meantime the charge of libel remains undisposed of.

While the hearing was in progress, Mr. Fleming offered a motion for change of venue, alleging among other things that the judge of the court was his worst enemy and arguing that, under American legal procedure, he could not be tried fairly on a criminal charge by an enemy. Judge Lobingier, in committing him for contempt, did not pass upon Fleming's motion for a change of venue.

Fruit and Blossom Are Coincident On State Apple Tree

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Sept. 18.—An apple tree that approaches perpetual production was reported here by Forest Ranger Hasen of Lytle Creek station. The tree has blossoms and matured fruit at the same time, it being most unusual that blossoms appear in September, and according to forest service officials here no other case is known where the fruit and blossom appeared coincidently on the apple tree.

THREE PEOPLE ARE INJURED

Several Accidents Are Reported

Three people were injured and two machines damaged in an automobile collision at D street and San Benito avenue at 11:50 o'clock yesterday morning.

The injured:

Mrs. Jessie Diaz Garcia, 43, 353 E street. Chest contusions.

Miss Lucia Garcia, 16, 353 F street. Sprained back, abrasions and contusions of both knees.

Joe Garcia, 21, 353 D street. Sprained back, possibly spine or kidney injuries.

Joe Garcia, who was driving a small truck west on San Benito avenue, collided with a machine driven north on D street by Fred Scheidt, residing on Route J. Officer Bates of the police department investigated the accident and reported Garcia had the right of way.

Treatment was given the Garcia family by Dr. W. L. Adams in the emergency hospital.

Picture Companies Use Old Ship

NEWPORT, Calif., Sept. 18.—The seven seas that kissed the oaken prow of the old bark Narwhal, probably never offered stranger sights than seen now on the weather-worn, holystoned decks. Painted women and men of varied types are enacting tragedy, comedy and romance on the old craft, which was dragged from the old ships' home in the Oakland estuary as a setting for a number of motion picture companies here.

MRS. DELLA SONTA DIES

Mrs. Leonilda Della Sonta, wife of Lorenzo Della Sonta, died yesterday morning at her home near Raisin City. She was 40 years old.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Miss Margaret Della Sonta, and two sons, Louis and Joe Della Sonta.

Funeral arrangements are being made by Lisle & Ross.

INJURED IN FALL

Neil Grant, 26, residing on Ryland Lane, has been treated by Dr. W. L. Adams in the emergency hospital for minor injuries received in a fall at his home shortly after 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

SECOND TONG MURDER TRIAL BEGINS TODAY

Lee Yick Charged With Killing Tong Member

Death Penalty Will Be Asked by the Prosecution

The trial of Lee Yick, charged by a grand jury indictment with murder as the perpetrator of the tong war killing here on June 7, is scheduled to commence this morning at 9:30 before Judge S. L. Strother in department one of the superior court. This is the second tong murder trial.

A venire of 77 has been drawn and from these the attorneys will select 12 jurors to try the case. It is probable that the selection of a jury will occupy two days time and the actual trial of the case several days.

The prosecution, which is in charge of District Attorney R. W. Gearhart, assisted by O. L. Everts, is to ask the death penalty for Yick, they announced. No juror will be accepted for duty who has any scruples against rendering a death verdict, it was stated.

In the case of Wong Toy, the defense attempted to prove an alibi for the defendant. It is probable that in this case they will also attempt to prove an alibi. They may also attempt to prove that Yick is not vice-president and military chieftain of the Suey On Tong as is contended by the district attorney.

The defense is to be handled by Attorneys W. D. Crichton, Herbert McDowell, R. G. Retallick and M. K. Harris.

Because of a fear of corruption or violence, it has been necessary for the district attorney to seclude the Chinese witnesses, who are expected to testify, in the coast range mountains under a heavy armed guard. The witnesses have gone to the mountains at their own request.

Cots and bedding have been ordered by the board of supervisors for the use of jurors who are impanneled in these cases. It is believed that after a jury has been selected they will be locked up until the case has been concluded as was done in the Wong Toy case. Court Bailiff Claude Fay will have charge of the jury.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

Showers too light to measure fell over the interior valleys of California during the last twenty-four hours, Merced being the only station reporting a measurable amount. Amounts along the central and northern portions of the coast averaged about one-quarter inch. During Sunday a new storm of considerable barometric depth entered on the Washington coast and moderate rain fell generally in the North Pacific states and continued at all reporting stations there on Sunday evening. It is probable that this storm will move inland without effect on local weather, and generally fair weather in this valley over Monday and probably Tuesday is the indication.
